U. S. Spurs Sub War; Sinks 28 U-Boats

ALL-OUT AXIS DRIVE SEEN THIS SUMMER

Washington Expects Nazis to Use 300 to 400 Undersea Craft in Attack.

PATROLS INCREASED

Atlantic Coast Attacks Fail to Divert Convoy Strength From Other Areas.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — America's anti-submarine campaign is being stepped up rapidly to meet an expected all-out summer drive by 300 to 400 U-boats, reliable sources said today.

The navy announced late yesterday that 28 Axis submarines had been sunk or presumed sunk by U. S. forces thus far. Naval observers said, however, that the rate of destruction was still too low to check the German drive. They gave this picture of the situation:

Germany had at the very least 120 ocean-going submarines before Dec. 7 and 180 more building for service by mid-summer. New evidence indicates that this figure is ultra-conservative, and salvaged parts of destroyed submarines show the Germans have developed very rapid methods of construction.

Although Germany has suffered heavy U-boat casualties thus far, the rate of sinking has not slowed the present U-boat campaign and would be of dubious effectiveness against a more intense drive.

Even so, the Germans have failed to divert U. S. naval strength from more vital warfronts to form convoys in American waters. The number of merchant craft sunk off the Atlantic and Caribbean coasts is approaching the 80 mark, but this rate might prove far from crippling in view of the tremendous shipbuilding program and development of land transportation facilities.

The United States is making large increases in patrol forces, particularly in the air, and is developing new methods of locating and destroying U-boats. Placing army planes on the patrol under command of the navy has stimulated the submarine hunt. Further large increases in the patrol await only the delivery of anti-

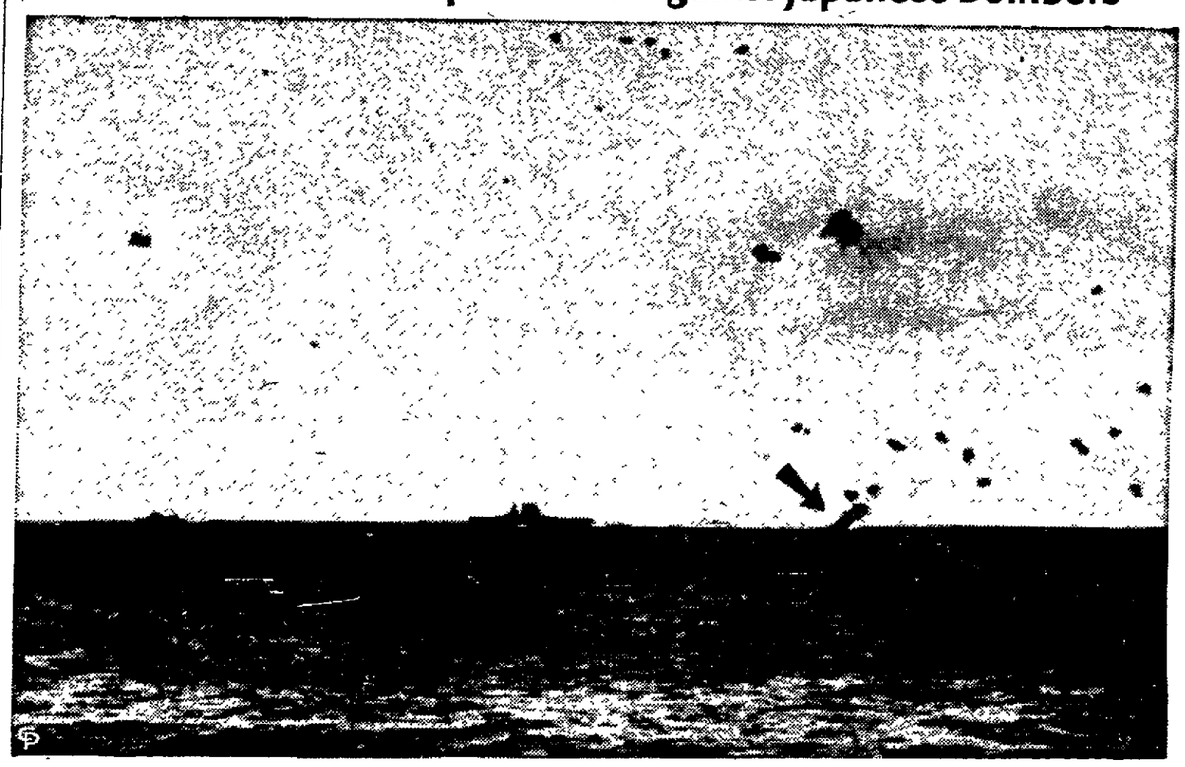
Here's O'Hare's Epic Battle Against Japanese Bombers



A dramatic moment during the southwest Pacific sea-air battle in which Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare, U. S. navy pilot, single-handedly shot down six Japanese bombers, is pictured above. The black dots scattered across the sky are bursting shells of the intense anti-aircraft barrage sent up by warships of the task force. The column of smoke rising astern of the aircraft carrier, center, is from a Japanese plane shot down by O'Hare. At bottom, Lieut. O'Hare, left, is pictured as he tells newsmen at Pearl Harbor how he managed to shoot down the six Jap bombers. O'Hare's squadron commander, John Thach, is at right.

SOLVES THEFTS OF LIVESTOCK

Sheriff Says Youths Confess Stealing Sheep, Calves on Richland Farms.

The theft of livestock from at least a half dozen Richland county farms since February had been solved today with the arrest of two confessed sheep and calf "rustlers" at their Morrow county hide-out, Sheriff Frank E. Robinso announced.

The sheriff said he questioned the pair at the Morrow county sheriff's office in Mt. Gilead and they confessed the theft of at least 14 sheep and four calves from farms in Richland county.

One of the accused livestock thieves is 17 years old and his companion is 20. They were taken into custody by Sheriff Oscar George of Morrow county and are being held in Mt. Gilead pending the filing of charges. Both youths are from the Steam Corners community in Morrow county.

Sheriff Robinson said today he would file a detainer to have the pair brought here to face grand

LOOKS LIKELY

House Approval of Federal Sales Tax Looms.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— House approval of a retail sales tax instead of the treasury's proposed stiff increases in individual income and corporation tax rates, seemed today to be as good a bet as can be made now on the new $7,600,000,000 war revenue program.

A substantial majority of the 25 members of the ways and means committee still are supporting a sales tax that would raise in the neighborhood of $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000. The treasury estimates that would take a 10 per cent tax, including only governmental transactions.

But opposition to this form of war taxation is not inconsequential. The treasury repeatedly has expressed its opposition and the treasury's position is supported by a bloc of a half-dozen of the most influential members of the committee.

Cautions Against Home-Made Cuffs On Men's Pants

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Even home-made cuffs on trousers are out, the war production board cautioned today.

Under orders effective yesterday persons are prohibited from buying suits or trousers at retail, having them delivered with the trousers unfinished, and having cuffs put on them at home or by a local tailor.

WPB called attention to a paragraph in the cloth-saving order which reads:

"No person shall finish a pair of trousers made of wool cloth with cuffs or cause such to be finished with cuffs by others for his account."

FREEZES STOCKS

WPB Puts Check On Office Furniture and Equipment.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The war production board froze manufacturers' stocks of metal office furniture and equipment today, prohibited production of insulated metal filing cabinets, safes, and metal visible record equipment except to fill top-rated priority orders, and ordered immediate and drastic curtailment in the output of other lines.

REPORT BATTLE

Argentine Circles Say German, U. S. Ships Clash At Sea.

BUENOS AIRES—(INS)—Maritime circles in Rio De Janeiro reported that United States and German war vessels had clashed in a battle off the Brazilian coast, the newspaper Critica said today in a dispatch from Rio De Janeiro.

WEISS FREED

Huey Long Lieutenant Paroled After Serving 15 Months.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Seymour Weiss, New Orleans hotel owner and treasurer of the late Huey Long's political machine, has been paroled by the United States board of parole after serving about 15 months of a four-year sentence for mail fraud.

It was disclosed that Weiss had paid his $6,000 fine and $115,000 on income taxes, leaving a balance of about $20,000. An official said that arrangements had been made to pay this off.

Bank Clearings, Tax Receipts Climb to New High Records

Mansfield bank clearings and Richland county property tax collections set new records in March, clearings reaching an all-time high and tax payments topping figures for the past 11 years.

Tax receipts for the half-year period went over the $700,000 mark for the first time since the 10-mill tax limitation went into effect in 1931, County Treasurer Charles C. Payne said today. Previous to that time, rates were much higher and the tax charge was greater.

After slumping badly in February, the city's bank clearings boomed to $11,523,703 last month, topping the previous record by more than $100,000, the Clearing House association reported today.

Bankers were of the opinion that the heavy payment of real estate and income taxes helped to boost the bank clearings, although brisk business in clothing, food supplies, and building materials also is believed to have contributed to the increase.

Funds cleared through the city's four banks last month amounted to nearly $3,000,000 more than the February clearings and exceeded

Dredging of Rocky Fork to Ease Flood Threat Assured

Realization of a proposed program for dredging of Rocky Fork creek to remove a constant flood threat was assured today with announcement that Westinghouse will participate in the program.

John H. Ashbaugh, manager of the Westinghouse merchandising division, revealed that the company will share in the expense of the project to the extent of $10,000. Cost of the work is estimated at $28,500, which is being raised by contributions from various industries in the city.

"This action by Westinghouse assures that the work will be carried out," said John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The waterways and flood prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by P. R. Tappan, is sponsoring the financing of the work, which was planned by the Mansfield Conservancy board. Members of Tappan's committee have contacted heads of industrial plants to arrange for the subscriptions.

In urging support of the program, Tappan warned that a serious flood here would throw into unemployment two-thirds of the industrial plant workers in Mansfield for a period of a week to six months.

The work proposed is dredging of Rocky Fork between Longview avenue and the sewage disposal plant. The intent is to remove obstructions to the flow line of a 1918 dredging project. It is not planned to widen the channel or make a new right-of-way.

Start of work on the project will depend, Routzon said, upon completion of arrangements for city and county participation in the cost.

GET SET FOR SUPPLY DRIVE

Defense Medical Division In Appeal to Get Donations Ready for Campaign.

Organized for service in hospital, first aid and casualty stations in the event of war or disaster Mansfield's medical division for civilian defense moved forward today to equip those stations through a city-wide drive for supplies the week of April 13. Mansfielders are asked to check their homes and ascertain what supplies they will have to contribute.

The division has set up a list of necessary articles beginning with freshly laundered sheets, pillow cases, towels, wash cloths and cotton blankets. Part of the sheets will be used to make dressings and the remainder will be stored.

Folding cots of the army type, cotton batting, old raincoats that can be used for rubber sheeting, splints and other articles ranging from safety razors and razor blades to paper cups and laundry bags are needed.

John Simpson Junior high school will be used as a temporary receiving station and donors can take their contributions there daily the week of the drive from 9 a. m., to 12 noon and from 1 p. m., to 4 p. m.

Assignment of physicians and nurses to the five casualty stations established for the emergency is now under way in charge

O'MahoneyCharges Cartel Restrained Economic Freedom

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) asserted today that relations between the Standard Oil company (New Jersey) and I. G. Farben of Germany before the war illustrated a "device whereby economic opportunity for the masses has been restrained."

"It is now clearly established," he told reporters, "by the acknowledgements of Mr. Farish (W. S. Farish, Standard president) that since 1929 at least the Standard Oil company and the German Chemical Trust, otherwise known as I. G. Farben, have been members of a world-wide cartel.

"The meaning of this should be made crystal clear to the people of America. It is that the managers of I. G. Farben and the managers of Standard Oil have been engaged in a very successful joint effort to maintain complete control of a tremendous segment of our economy.

"It certainly ought to be clear now that the masses of the people cannot hope to maintain their economic, and ultimately their political freedom, while organizations of this kind dominate the trade of the world."

O'Mahoney made these comments before the senate defense investigating committee recalled Farish to the witness stand for the third day to continue a reply to testimony by Thurman Arnold, anti-trust chief.

AIRPLANES TO FLY OVER ARMY DAY PARADERS

Civil Air Patrol Arranges For Aerial Show at Monday Evening Celebration.

CALLS DEFENSE UNITS

Kalbfleisch Wants All Who Registered in Civilian Program to Report.

Adding to the military air of Mansfield's Army Day parade Monday at 7:30 p. m., a formation of nine planes piloted by Civil Air Patrol members will roar over Mansfield's business district while the parade is in progress.

This was announced today by Capt. Glenn L. Bierly, parade chairman, as he and his committee made further plans for the gala down town celebration for which all Mansfield is expected to turn out either as parade participan's or as spectators.

A call for all persons registered for service in the various branches of civilian defense activities to report for participation in the parade was issued today by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Civilian defense chairman.

All motorized units, including floats, will comprise the third division.

Monday night's "Salute to the Boys in Service" will mark the first public appearance of the only uniformed group of Civilian defense, the Civil Air Patrol, which will march, 180 strong, with the second division. Although ordered the uniforms will not be here in time for the parade.

Headed by Dr. L. D. Bonar, squadron commander, the plane formation will fly while the parade is in progress unless the field at Municipal Airport is soggy and does not permit the pilots to take off and land.

Mansfield's Senior and Junior High school bands will lend zest to the parade with martial music as will the American Legion drum corps and possibly other bands and musical aggregations still to volunteer.

Civilian defense units including air raid wardens, auxiliary policemen, first aid units, rescue squads and the state highway patrol auxiliary will march in the second division of the parade and will form at 7 p. m. at the intersection of Marion avenue and Park avenue west.

All persons registered for civilian defense, regardless of

RULING GIVEN

Certain Army Men Permitted To Run For Office.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The war department ruled today that members of the National Guard, reserve officers and selectees may enter political races and hold public office under certain circumstances.

The ruling on political activity of military personnel does not apply to the regular army, whose members are barred in all cases from participation in political activities. The ruling on guardsmen, reserves and selectees stemmed from a policy formulated last Sept. 26 by the adjutant general.

The adjutant general held that if the affected person could accomplish his campaign on his ordinary leave and if the election and occupancy of civil office would not interfere with military duties the war department would consider exempting him from army regulations against political activities.

Land Troops At Port 100 Miles From Frontier

Cruisers, Destroyers Guard Landing at Akyab In Burma; Sea-Borne Attack on Port Moresby Expected; Skirmishes Continue Sharp on Batan.

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI, India—(UP)—Japanese warplanes attacked British and Chinese rear-line positions today in an effort to open a path for twin drives toward Mandalay and the rich Yenangyaung oil fields.

(By Associated Press)

Japanese sea-borne troops thrusting closer to India were reported today to have landed at the chief west Burma port of Akyab, only 100 miles from the Burma-India frontier, as prospects for mobilizing India's 390,000,000 on the side of the United Nations took a sudden brightening turn.

A Chinese spokesman in Chungking said the Japanese landed at Akyab under the protective covering of a force of cruisers and destroyers.

Akyab is only 350 miles across the upper Bay of Bengal from Calcutta.

Besides heightening the threat of a Japanese invasion of India, the landing directly imperilled the rear of British imperial lines now guarding the rich central Burma oil fields.

Meanwhile, dispatches from Australia indicated that Japan's invasion forces in the southwest Pacific, halted in their attempted overland drive in New Guinea, were preparing to launch a sea-borne attack on the key Allied base at Port Moresby, only 300 miles across the Torres strait from Australia itself.

The Sydney Sun declared such an assault was "suggested by recent movements of enemy ships, which are being constantly attacked at Lae and Salamaua by the Allied air forces."

Lae and Salamaua lie on the northeast coast of New Guinea, less than 200 miles above Port Moresby.

The newspaper also reported that the Japanese were receiving "considerable" aerial reinforcements, threatening to challenge the air superiority won by United States and Australian fliers in the battle for the approaches to Australia.

A British broadcast said American and Aussie fliers had destroyed or crippled 96 Japanese planes with a loss of only 12 of their own since March 10.

Wary of the stiff Allied fighter defenses, Japanese planes made their first night attack on Darwin, Australia's north coast port, last night, after suffering heavy losses in previous daylight raids.

In the Philippine theater, a war department bulletin reported sharp skirmishes on Batan peninsula in the wake of yesterday's big-scale assault, in which Japanese troops captured some American-Filipino outposts but failed to reach the main defense lines.

The war department said enemy artillery and divebombers attacked Lieut.-Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's Batan positions and Japanese planes continued their round-the-clock assaults on fortresses in Manila bay. However, the Japanese were forced to fly at such high altitudes that their bombing was ineffective.

BRIGHTER: Cripps Will Stay; Chances of India Accord Seen

(By Associated Press)

NEW DELHI, India—Sir Stafford Cripps pumped new life today into the prospects of India accepting Britain's offer of post-war dominion status, after all but a glimmer of hope had vanished for his mission.

Announcing that he was prolonging his stay "a short time," Cripps said that "points of difficulty are coming down to fairly narrow limits and with good-will we may be able to solve the difficulties."

The implication was that Britain, which had submitted her offer on a basis of all-or-nothing, might modify her terms lest the whole scheme be doomed.

Whether India, already under the shadow of Japanese invasion, would direct her own defenses still appeared to be the crux of the issue. There were indications that Britain might give up her insistence on keeping India's defense in her hands until after the war.

Cripps had arranged to leave next Monday, but postponed his departure because "I think I can possibly do something useful next week."

He told a press conference it "was rather natural, in a state of keen excitement, that the people tended to over-commit themselves in a particular direction at rather too early a stage."

But, he added, "I think that judging from what I have seen in the press this morning that it is

BLOWS: RAF Raids Paris War Plants; Germans Strike on Sea

(By Associated Press)

British bombers smashed anew at German war foundries in the environs of Paris last night, the London air ministry announced today, while Adolf Hitler's high command reported "very successful" attacks against United States and British shipping in the grim battle of the Atlantic.

As if countering a U. S. Navy announcement that 28 Axis submarines had been sunk or presumed sunk by United States forces so far, the Nazi high command asserted that the German navy and air force destroyed 105 Allied merchant ships totaling 646,900 tons during the month of March.

U-boats alone sank 91 ships totaling 584,900 tons, the German communique said, adding that 39 other merchant vessels were heavily damaged by torpedo or bomb hits.

Vichy (French) news agency dispatches said RAF bombers, striking into occupied France during the night attacked a number of points on the outskirts of Paris, particularly at Rueil, Sannois and Poissy.

The British air ministry said the heaviest blows were rained on the Matford works at Poissy, eight miles west of Paris, which had been rolling out 20 trucks daily for the German war machine.

The air ministry acknowledged 15 RAF bombers were missing from far-ranging raids that reached into west and northwest Germany as well as into the Paris region. A German communique said 11 British bombers were shot down over the reich alone.

RAF fighter planes also at-

JAPAN LANDS TROOPS NEAR INDIA BORDER

Australia Expects Sea-Borne Invasion Attempt at Port Moresby.

regidor island duelled with Japanese batteries on the south shore of the bay.

On the critical Burma front, British headquarters reported no substantial change in the situation, indicating that the Japanese had been at least temporarily checked in their two-pointed drive from the south toward Mandalay and the Burma oil fields.

Resurgence of military activity was evident in the Philippines.

American-Filipino raiders hit destructively at two Japanese bases on the southern island of Mindanao, Zamboanga and Digos, a Washington communique said. Some sharp patrol clashes yesterday followed brisk fighting in which the Japanese, at a heavy cost in dead and wounded, forced back a few Batan peninsula outposts.

Japanese naval vessels shelled the west coast of the peninsula and dive-bombers again attacked the front lines and the Corregidor fortress, Manila bay bastion, but no serious damage was announced.

Japan's high command, however, declared that air attacks between March 24 and 31 had damaged the fortress' anti-aircraft batteries, an airfield, barracks and other military establishments.

The Mindanao raids led U. S. military observers to predict that thousands of native fighters, based in teak and ebony forests, would harass the Japanese frequently.

A small force of United States troops was reported to have burned 22 warehouses of food, gasoline and ammunition and destroyed military equipment at Digos, a hamlet 23 miles south of Davao, and retired without losing a man.

Sulu bush-fighters destroyed several machine-gun nests in a thrust to the heart of Zamboanga, some 250 miles west of Digos, inflicted heavy casualties and withdrew unscathed, authorities said.

Nazis Expect Allied Spring Invasion

LONDON — (INS) — An Anglo-American invasion of the continent in the spring is accepted by the German general staff as "a development which is bound to come," the Nazi-controlled Paris radio reported today.

A military commentator in the broadcast declared: "As soon as the German offensive in the east develops the British will start diversional operations in the west.

"American troops in northern Ireland and Britain will not wait forever for the attack, which aims ultimately at the occupation of Berlin by British, American and Soviet forces," he said.

Australian Army Officers Assigned

MELBOURNE, Australia—(AP)—The reorganization of the Australian army, rapidly being keyed to a peak war pitch, was virtually completed today with the appointment of Lieut. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett as a corps commander and the assignment of various other high officers to important posts.

The appointment of Bennett, who commanded the Australian imperial force in Malaya and escaped from Singapore, was announced by Army Minister Francis Forde.

Bennett's chief of staff will be Brig. W. M. Anderson, who served in the Middle East last year.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme commander, was expected to disclose soon how United States higher commands would be dovetailed with Anzac commands.

BABY FOUND

Now Mother Wants Infant She Put in Ash Can.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Stiff and blue from overnight exposure, a new-born baby girl was found alive in an ash can on upper Walnut street today and police reported that the mother, twice divorced within six months, "now wants the baby back."

Lieu. John Turigliatto said the baby responded to treatment "and likely will pull through." He quoted the 20-year-old mother as saying the child was born in her third-floor flat at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday and that she placed it in the ground-floor receptacle about 6 o'clock.

She and her first husband were divorced last June, the woman said and her second mate obtained a decree in January. Mother and baby were taken to General hospital. Turigliatto said she was unable to explain her act.

submarine craft and the training of crews.

Naval observers emphasized that while the battle of the American coast is far from won, it is also far from lost. The real fight is just beginning

Of the total of 28 Axis submarines announced sunk or presumed sunk, seven were in the Pacific. Donald Francis Mason, a 28-year-old Rochester, Minn., naval flier emerged as one of the heroes of the preliminary campaign.

Mason is the Atlantic pilot who recently reported "sighted sub, sank same." The navy added enough words to that report to explain that Mason spotted a submarine cruising at periscope depth, dived and dropped two bombs from a low altitude, and blew the sub partly out of the water.

On a later patrol Mason blew up another submarine with depth charges. He has been awarded a Distinguished Flying Cross, a silver star to the cross and a commission as an ensign.

larceny charges should the Morrow county authorities decide against filing charges.

Arrest of the pair followed a recent meeting in Galion of sheriffs from Richland, Knox, Morrow, and Crawford counties who spread a net for the thieves over north central Ohio, Sheriff Robinson revealed today.

He said the youths admitted taking their loot to an abandoned barn near Steam Corners and then disposing of the animals in Bucyrus.

The youths had a quantity of stolen junk in the old barn when they were apprehended by Sheriff George. They said they picked up junk as they roamed about the country looking for livestock.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(INS)—Reports published in the United States that a fully equipped submarine base for U-boat use had been discovered on the Santos coast were officially denied by Brazilian authorities today.

the March figures last year by $2,000,000.

Richard H. Wynn, secretary of the Clearing House association, said the city's banks handled $30,833,412 during the first three months of 1942, an increase of $4,500,000 over the first quarter of last year.

The first-half property tax receipts totaled 105 per cent of the charge which Treasurer Payne said was an unusually good collection in view of the big increase this year in income taxes and the small amount of delinquent taxes due.

When there is a big delinquent tax bill due, payments on it always boost the tax receipts for the period in which delinquent payments are made, Payne said. The Richland county delinquent tax bill has been reduced to approximately $150,000.

sobering down a little now to a more thoughtful frame of mind."

Cripps said there was no substitute for the plan.

The all-India congress party working committee, representing India's Hindu majority, had announced no verdict after five days of deliberation and Cripps said he had received no word yet of the reactions of the Moslem league, the dominant minority voice.

Two lesser elements—the Sikhs, warriors of the Punjab, and the Mahasabha group of Hindus—already had given a definite "no" answer but Cripps intimated that if a formula could be worked out with the others they might reconsider.

On the defense question, Indian Nationalists argue on two broad lines—first, only an Indian could rally the Indians to the all-out war pitch Britain seeks, and, secondly, India's defenses could be entrusted safely to such a man as Captain Sir Sikander Hyat Khan, premier of the Punjab, which provides the present bulk of Indian troops.

The name of General Sir Archibald P. Wavell was thrust into the picture by a dispatch from New Delhi last night to the Daily Herald, London laborite newspaper, which said Britain's commander-in-chief for India and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru of the Congress party would meet to discuss the defense issue.

This was presented as a new tack by Cripps.

What do I do?

—ABOUT CHANGING OIL?

You know how rubbing even the tiniest speck of grit over a smooth table-top can leave a jagged scratch. Imagine, then, what grit does to the fast-moving, mirror-like surfaces of your car motor. Grit and dirt get into the crankcase with the air for carburetion and with the air "breathed" into the crankcase for ventilation. The air, and oil filters can't keep it all out. So protect your motor against excessive wear and possible serious damage. Have the crankcase flushed and oil changed every 1,000 miles.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1942.

How fortunate to be in a country where spring is welcomed—at least THIS spring.

It is encouraging to note, from many parts of the country, that convicted tire thieves are being given a much longer stretch.

As nearly as can be discerned from this distance, political party leaders in Washington are anxious to have their opponents "forget politics."

Elements of Home Strength

DR. LEE H. FERGUSON, director of student health service at Western Reserve University, speaking to a Nursery Education meeting, stated four principles as basic in preserving home strength. They were a biologically sound and stronger marriage bond, a morally clean family unit, common ideals for parents and children to replace the cocktail civilization which came to an end December 7, and faith in the heart.

There can be no doubt that a marriage bond assumed to be permanent is needed if children of this new age are to be brought up without the danger of broken homes. Common ideals for parents and children which lead them to look for something higher than more and better cocktails are also called for. These require home-staying and home interests for their growth and development. Fortunately there is a general feeling that new and better home-stability is on the way.

If observance of Holy week, and the significance of Good Friday and Easter, can be assumed to exert influence on more than a small percentage of the people, this is a season when recognition of the need for spiritual development is more than ordinarily prevalent.

Common ideals for parents and children, which lead them to aspirations higher than what has been termed a "cocktail civilization," are essentials of a nation striving to prove to a doubting world that the principles of democracy are practicable.

Lew Ayres, 'Conscientious Objector'

THOSE "conscientious objectors" whose scruples against participation in war are an inheritance from preceding generations of consistent followers of a deep-seated religious faith that holds to the doctrine of non-resistance, can at least be credited with honesty and sincerity.

Any sudden development of "conscientious objections," however, on the part of a young man eligible for military service and not theretofore associated with such a religious group, may fairly be regarded with suspicion of expediency.

As, for instance, in the case of screen actor Lew Ayres, who claims exemption from military service on "conscientious objector" grounds and who has been assigned to noncombatant duties in a government camp near Portland, Ore., for the duration of war.

Ayres, the former husband of Ginger Rogers and Lola Lane, was given an A-1 classification by his draft board but entered a plea for assignment as a "conscientious objector."

"I do not go to any church regularly," he said, "but I have a genuine religion of my own. . . . In my opinion we will never stop wars until we individually cease fighting—and that's what I propose to do."

Granting to Lew Ayres, and to others in the relatively small group of "conscientious objectors," the "right" to such a religious or ethical belief, it must be considered fortunate that the doctrine of non-resistance to brutal aggression has not become a dominant influence in the lives of millions whose participation in actual warfare will be required to save this nation from destruction and to spare Americans from the brutalities now being inflicted on men, women and children in Axis-ridden areas.

How easy would be made the task of Hitler and his Axis partners if the attitude of Lew Ayres, visionary idealist, reflected the spirit of America!

Yugoslavs Hard To Handle

THE GROWING German difficulties in Yugoslavia are not the least of their troubles. For one thing, the Italians have different ideas. The German maps show the Yugoslav territories as occupied, the Italians as annexed. Evidently Italy has hopes for territorial gains which Germany does not mean to gratify.

The problem of appeasing this conquered country is something else. Hitler has been trying to weaken his opponents by playing off against each other the three peoples who made up the Yugoslav state. The Croats are promised Serbian territory if they will be good, and the Serbs get like promises of gains from Croatia. The Italians, to whom the Slovenes have mostly fallen, have been milder because they think that friends in Yugoslavia may be well worth having. To this extent they are intriguing against the Germans.

Meanwhile revolt continues in the mountain districts. Pavelitch, the Croatian Quisling whom Hitler has put in charge, tries to put down the insurrection by terrorism carried on by his Ustacha or storm troopers. General Neditch, whom the Germans have set over the Serbians, is less a traitor than a Petain, a Serbian who thinks it wiser for his country to fall in line with Germany. He and Pavelitch are continually at odds with each other, and the Germans have to smooth them down. Nazi troops are continually being weakened by rebel raids—just at a time when they are needed in Russia.

No Soap Shortage Likely

NO SHORTAGE of soap is expected in this country. Housewives need not be tempted to pile up a supply in advance of need. There will be plenty of soap—and for a curious reason. In modern soap-making glycerine is a by-product, and glycerine is one of the most important factors in producing explosives.

Fine and luxurious soaps, made from imported oils, may have to go for a time. But there will be plenty of good, plain American soap, enough for all possible toilet, kitchen and laundry uses.

One thousand miles per hour is predicted by an engineer as the eventual prevailing speed in the air—so the noon sign on the office door may sometime read: "Out for lunch to Chicago; back at 1."

Some folks think Hitler is slipping while other believe he is merely slipping another one over on the German people.

"STAR OF INDIA"

Believe Gold Value Will Increase

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Remember the story of the fox whose tail was cut off, and who then went around winning quite a few converts to the notion that tails were just a nuisance?

That is the theory now of some shrewd economists, including Bernard M Baruch, with respect to gold and silver. The thought is that the huge pile of gold which the United States owns at Fort Knox, and for much of which $35 an ounce was paid, is more likely to be MORE valuable after the war is over than it was before—more likely to be worth MORE than $35 an ounce if at any time a free gold market should be resumed, than less than $35 an ounce.

It is always difficult to predict the future, so let's look at the present Suppose for some reason the United States government should decide today to repeal the law preventing private individuals or corporations from owning gold. Suppose it should revert to the old policy of paying gold on demand for paper currency, and at the established price of $35 an ounce.

What would happen?

The belief of Baruch and his associates is that there would be such a tremendou. demand for gold by private individuals that the government would find no difficulty whatever in trimming down that huge hoard at Fort Knox to the normal reserve requirements for the currency.

BEAR in mind that if the whole gold transaction were "closed" in this manner, the result would be a considerable net profit—some two billion dollars—to the treasury. This time it would be an actual profit. Of course it was charged up as a paper profit a long time ago.

There is, incidentally, very little dissent about this view, because there is an underlying motive—the desire of many people with a little cash to make some sort of hedge against inflation. It is the reason why so many people have bought land, particularly farms, who have no real thought of farming the land themselves, but who think they can sell the land after the value of the dollar has settled down, some years hence, for about the same REAL value they put into it.

People holding that view, and there are a lot of them, many more than have actually bought land or anything else as a hedge against inflation, are afraid that dollars will not be worth anything like as much when that settling down process is over. As they view it, they might have to get twice as many dollars for their land at the end of this period in order to come out even—that is to be able to buy as much flour, or beefsteak, or automobiles, as the dollars paid for the land would have bought.

It is known that President Roosevelt is opposed to inflation, but it is not believed, among these people afraid that the value of their dollars may shrink, that anyone is doing much to prevent a slide. Every time wages and prices rise, of course, a little bit of it occurs.

For there does not have to be any such absurdity as what happened to the German mark. The old French franc was cut to one-fifth of its gold value before the first World war in the readjustments which followed that war. The Italian lira was cut almost as much. So was the Belgian franc.

NOTE that these changes enormously enhanced the value of GOLD in buying THINGS. And most economists believe that gold will continue to buy more and more THINGS no matter what other governments may do about gold, or how they may try to make other foxes think tails are just an impediment!

Man About Manhattan

Red Tape Cutter

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Though everyone knows that Ilka Chase is an actress whose mother is editor of Vogue, not everyone realizes how outspoken she is or what hatred for red tape she carries in her shapely brunet noggin.

They haven't known up till now, that is, but they will when they read her altogether enjoyable reminiscenses and impressions which have been published under the bangup title of "Past Imperfect."

Miss Chase is a strong-minded and self-willed young woman who has variously been called "the Minx in mink" and "the electric brunet." You'll remember her for her part in "The Women" and for various other activities, including two years on the air.

THE episode I wish especially to relay concerns her first marriage, and an actress she worked with in the Stuart Walker company.

"In my Baltimore and Cincinnati days," she recalls, "the theater was more foolish. Love held sway on the stage, and off-stage there were jealousy and affection, tears and laughter and parties, poisonous prohibition gin, and a touch of high life in the person of Miss Julia Hoyt, who had social position. Julia was in the Stuart Walker company, and she was fun and always nice to me. Later on we married and divorced the same man. I got there first, but she lasted longer, and although we rarely see each other now, I would say that our mutual sentiments are friendly if tenuous.

"A month or so after Julia married my ex-husband, I was playing in Chicago, and in going through a trunk which had been sent on to me from New York, I found a box of calling cards engraved "Mrs. Louis Calhern." They were the best cards—thin, flexible parchment, highly embossed—and it seemed a pity to waste them, and so I mailed the box to my successor. But aware of Lou's mercurial marital habits, I wrote on the top one, "Dear Julia,' I hope these reach you in time.' I received no acknowledgment."

WHAT used to drive Miss Chase into fits of impotent rage was what she regarded as the "obvious fence-straddling" of the broadcasting companies so as not to offend Axis sympathizers. At that time the movies considered filming "A Yank in the RAF," but some busybody quibbled that public opinion had not crystalized sufficiently to make it safe for such a picture to be produced. As Miss Chase points out, "He was silenced by the retort that it had crystalized enough to make a production called 'A Yank in the Luftwaffe' inadvisable."

During one interview with Tallulah Bankhead the actress wanted to use the line, "Well, Ilka, I love England. You know I lived there many years." Miss Chase says the line was not allowed because it was "English Propaganda" and the line was edited to read, "I love the English theater."

It's a curious recital of the things that have touched her life, this book-curious because all venom is tinged with laughter . . . There are no mortal blows, only flesh wounds . . . I believed every word of it.' I can not say this for every autobiography I have read this year.

Lewis Family 'Take' Much Larger Than Was Revealed, Hits $75,000

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The Washington Merry-Go-Round wishes to correct an earlier statement that John L. Lewis had three relatives on union payrolls whose salaries, plus his own, gave the family an annual "take" of $48,500 from the collections of union dues.

We regret to say that on further investigation we find we erred grievously. We apologize to Mr. Lewis for underestimating his capacities and print below the full Lewis family payroll showing that the miner czar has not three but nine relatives in cushy jobs and that the family "take" is not $48,500 but $70,500:

John L. Lewis, president, United Mine Workers	$25,000*
Kathryn Lewis, daughter, secretary-treasurer, District 50, UMW	7,500*
Denny Lewis, brother, head of United Construction Workers Organizing Committee	10,000*
J. R. Bell, brother-in-law, CIO controller	6,000
Orin Miller, brother-in-law, superintendent of the UMW office building in Indianapolis	5,000
Dan Collins, brother-in-law, CIO organizer	3,600
William Thomas, cousin, superintendent UMW building in Washington	5,000
Margaret Lindig, sister-in-law of Denny, UMW stenographer	2,400
Ann Miller, daughter of brother-in-law Orin Miller, UMW stenographer	2,400
Son-in-law of Floyd Bell, another Lewis brother-in-law, District 50 organizer	3,600
Total Lewis family payroll	$70,500

(*In addition to their big salaries, Lewis, his daughter and brother also have fat expense accounts. What they spend is their secret No figures have ever been revealed, even to union members.)

Imposing as is this payroll list, it still does not tell the whole story.

There is one Lewis relative who is not on a union payroll but who garners a high-bracket income from unions controlled by John L. He is brother-in-law Floyd Bell, an insurance agent. Representative of a surety company, Bell has what amounts to a monopoly on the business of bonding all national, district and local UMW officers and all CIO officials.

His commissions are estimated at $40,000 a year.

This sum, plus the payroll listed above, would bring the total "take" of the Lewis family up to $110,500 a year.

Gene Cox of Georgia.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT bigshots have a bear by the tail and don't know what to do with it.

The bear consists of accusations that Representative Gene Cox of Georgia violated the criminal statute (Title 18, U. S. Code, Sec. 203) which prohibits members of congress from receiving compensation for representing private clients before government agencies.

Most of the justice department big-shots are in a cold sweat over the case and want quietly to bury it. They are scared stiff over the prospect of tangling with Cox. The raucous-voiced little Georgian is a potent figure in the house.

He is a leader of the powerful bloc of Southern, anti-New Deal, labor-baiting Democrats, ranking member of the mighty rules committee, and on close personal terms with house floor chiefs. Also he is a resourceful and tough fighter, especially when under fire.

So most of the justice big-shots want to let Cox off, perhaps, with some private tsk-tsking. But younger members of the department are demanding legal action. They contend that the law is explicit and that it is the duty of the department to enforce it without fear or favor.

Attorney General Francis Biddle has not yet made up his mind. He is not noted for decisive action.

The Case.

THIS is the information in the hands of the justice department:

Station WALB, Albany, Ga., in Cox's district, applied to the federal communications commission for a construction permit to change its frequency. Cox made several visits to the FCC in behalf of WALB. However, his name did not appear on the station's formal application as its attorney of record.

After several hearings, the FCC granted the permit and when WALB opened its new station, Albany newspapers gave Cox much of the credit for putting the project over. They acclaimed him as a potent figure in Washington.

Around this time, Cox received a check for $2,500 from WALB. This check he converted into stock of the station. The justice department has a copy of this check.

Later, Hugh McCarthy, $135-a-month clerk in Cox's congressional office, sent WALB a bill for $226 he claimed was due him for services performed in connection with the permit. In addition to working for Cox, McCarthy also practices law on the side.

WALB refused to pay McCarthy. The station wrote him that Cox already had been paid for the job and the station saw no reason why it should fork over any money to McCarthy.

As far as the justice department knows, McCarthy still is unpaid. If he got any money he hasn't got it from WALB.

An interesting angle of the affair is that for months, Cox has been loudly clamoring for a house probe of the communications commission on the ground that it has a secret Gestapo. He introduced a resolution for such an investigation and has made a number of speeches demanding action on it, and denouncing the FCC.

Under congressional practice, if the probe is ordered, Cox would be chairman of the committee.

Note—Several years ago Cox was disclosed as being the No. 1 nepotist in the house. At that time he had eight relatives on the government payroll for a total take, including his $10,000 salary, of more than $55,000 a year.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The other night I sat across the table from a man who is considered one of the great news editors of these turbulent times.

"Aside from the big battles on this front or that," he said, "the biggest stories of this month and probably the next and the next are those which concern extravagances, waste and chiseling on the part of labor, management and government."

Why? Because letters, telegrams and editorials from you and you have got congress (a few months away from election in the whole House and part of the Senate) in a fine state of jitters.

NO ONE who has been around Congress very long is going to be too much perturbed about a deluge of mail on any specific issue. It's easy to arouse the pressure groups without arousing the real voters in ordinary times. A lobby for some cause gets het up about some pending legislation. The word goes back down the line until it reaches the little people—and they write their congressmen.

Ordinarily the congressmen thumb through this mail, answer it (just for fear it might be a voter), make some notation of it in the Congressional Record, and unless it assumes bandwagon proportions, go on about their business.

This time it's different. In the first place, it can't be determined that any of the mail demanding economies, an end to boondoggling, or a punishment—through new laws—of labor and management who step out of the war production line, is coming from any of the old organized pressure groups.

One flood of letters has come from the south and southwest and this sectional source has caused some congressmen to demand an investigation. But I have seen scores from other areas. If Texas and Oklahoma and a few other states have been most vociferous in their demands for a clean-up of the labor-management squabbles and the wage and hour problems, the same can't be said for the complaints against the Office of Civilian Defense and the Office of Government Reports; the NYA, the CCC; and congressional pensions, to mention just a few.

IMPORTANT enough to be included in the Congressional Record, with demands from their recipients that the Truman committee investigate, are such letters as (1) From a big defense contract holder in Connecticut that he is receiving so many questionnaires from sundry defense and government agencies that it takes 50 per cent of his time to answer them; (2) From a well known columnist that near Tucson, Ariz., millions of board feet of scrap lumber, owned by the government, had been burned up on government agents' orders, while hundreds of citizens nearby scoured the countryside for mesquite and other brush to combat their shortage of fuel and keep them from freezing to death.

It has been a long time since this country was aroused to such a consistent fit of writing its congressmen. That fact and the nearness of election has a lot of them jumping when the postman only rings once.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TODAY, in the garden plot the oldest boy had spaded, his mother planted a lettuce bed. Then, spurred by the sunshine and the drumming of a yellow hammer on the maple—stimulated by the cool west wind that defied the springlike murmur of the frogs in the swamp, she brought the broom rake and raked the backyard.

The sky was blue between the naked maple branches; the two small boys and the black and white puppy frolicked. Ruddy laughing faces showed the first flush of tan. White hens pecked sprouting grass blades; crows cawed from the corn stubble; far off a neighbor tuned up his tractor engine; the mail plane echoed southward with the glint of the sunshine on its slender outline.

Tender calamus shoots in the swamp were six inches long. Grass grew green among them. They tasted tender and bitter and good when pulled from the cold water and slipped out of their russet outer sheaths. Water cress beyond the pond breast had sent up delicate green buds that promised pungent peppery salad very soon.

A smudgy smoldering fire burned beside the pond and the burning leaves and sticks and old dry grass added a characteristic spring odor that pleased the nostrils. Looking around the horizon, other smudges of smoke told that almost every farm had an outdoor fire. Above the southern hill hung a dense white smoke cloud that might have been alarming at another season—now it spread along the ridges filling the wind with the smell of burning brush. Some farmer was cleaning up a fencerow.

Fields are drab, except the wheat. Plowing has scarcely started. (One neighbor plowed all night last night.) Buds are swollen only a little—even the catkins still are sheathed. Iris and hardy perennials have scarcely an inch of growth.

But spring is "tripping north" again. Only today a letter came from a friend who has wintered in Tennessee . . . "Down the lot here and in the next one, rows of jonquils march in golden glory; faithful crocuses stretch up their heads in dainty bonnets; across the street a stately weeping willow waves slowly its dainty new green foliage; the abelia, an evergreen shrub that I never saw in the north, is putting out its new leaves, at the same time pushing the old aside. The old leaves have had their day and must give way to the new—as is life everywhere."

CHAPTER XII

Madame Von Eln sat by the fire. It was late, and Parris had gone upstairs to study. She knew that Anna was in the kitchen waiting for her to go to bed. Tonight Anna would have to be patient.

The room was warm, though the fire was low now. The sound of the wind rose and fell in long sighs and howls. Madame wanted to think. She shook her head. No, she didn't want to think. She tried very hard to be reminiscent, but it was not successful. The uneventful years of her girlhood; a first marriage and the birth of Parris' mother; the second marriage to the picturesque but unstable Franz von Eln; his death; her own first struggle; the ensuing poverty; the deaths of Parris' father and mother—how many deaths one counted in a lifetime! —and these happiest years of all her life with Parris to watch over. Now—this time—this day was more important, and more interesting.

She wondered a little just why she so much wanted to live. Parris? Yes, of course. Because he loved her, but more because she loved him. She thought of him and smiled. Then she dozed . . . yes, and because she liked to see the wind moving the tops of the maple trees.

She called Anna.

Anna turned to the fire and raked the ashes from beneath the grate. "Yes, Madame?"

"Well, now, Anna, I was just wondering what would become of you when—when I'm not here any more?"

"Oh, Madame—"

"Have you any money, Anna?"

"Yes, Madame. I have saved everything. I—I shall—should be able to take care of myself. But who will look after Parris?"

Madame drew her shoulders together a little as though a chill draft struck her. "He will have to look after himself, Anna. He's a good boy—I suppose."

"Parris is a good boy." Anna spoke with undoubting emphasis.

"I hope so, Anna, I hope so. I think he is some kind of a gentleman. I shouldn't expect him to be an angel—or want him to be."

"Has Dr. Gordon said—?"

"He gives me one year, or two."

"What can I do for you, Madame, quickly?"

"Nothing, Anna. Just go on as if everything were the same as always. I don't want Parris to be disturbed—"

"He doesn't know about this?"

"He must not know, Anna. We must be as gay as possible, plan things, and appear to be happy. His studies—I want him to do very well. Now, go to bed."

"You are not going to bed yourself?"

"Not yet."

"Then I will wait. I'll just set some bread. Might as well bake tomorrow."

What was Parris like, deeper down than the surface? What did he dream of, look forward to? What did he desire?

The answers to these questions—these all-important questions—would not come from Parris or from her observation of him. Madame's own training had given him an exterior that communicated little, for all its seemingly expressive vivacity. Now, as she thought of it, she realized that he was far less vivacious than he used to be.

Parris was less lively. He talked a good deal but less gaily. He was—she hunted for a description—he was darker. Yes; that described him exactly. She wondered why. She must observe him a bit more closely. Maybe she had been neglecting him a little.

She would try to understand him better. Where she would find her answer — that was another matter. Not in Parris, she thought again, no; not in herself, because they were quite unlike. She tried to recall her daughter, Parris' mother. She had never understood Marian very well. No, she hadn't really liked Marian.

Obviously, she wouldn't be able to understand Parris through his mother. Parris' father, Sumter Mitchell—what an attractive boy he had been! A simple, forthright person. Anyway, he must have given Parris good qualities—more solid ones, she had no doubt, than Parris had from her own blood.

It might have been better if Parris could have had less of her own "foreign" ways, and more of the Mitchell manner. She knew that people commented on her bearing and conduct and thought her peculiar and alien. Well, she had left a wide circle of freedom about him — mental elbowroom, just as she demanded, and had to have, for herself. He had been happier because of that, she was sure.

Later Anna laid her firm, shiny hand under Madame's elbow, and the two women went slowly up the stairs.

Parris came to his door, frowning against the light of the unshaded lamp Anna carried. Madame shook her head. "You are up late."

"So are you, both of you."

"You are studying at this time of night?"

"I'm up late every night, Grand'mere—you know that."

"Well, well. But you must get your sleep. Good night."

He kissed her on both cheeks. "Good night. Good night, Anna." He sighed as he returned to his room. He was tired. There was so much to do every day. Work at Aberdeen was not easy, Dr. Tower demanded that he cover a lot of ground; and his music—he didn't want to neglect practice.

Paris worked hard throughout the winter. He felt that he had moved completely into a new world. He did indeed look thin and a little pale by April.

Dr. Tower, who consistently maintained an impersonal attitude toward his pupil, noticed the changes.

"Better ease up on your work a little, young man."

"Oh, I'm quite all right, sir."

"You don't look it. Leave your notebooks today and get out somewhere. Why don't you walk? Look up some of your friends—"

Parris looked straight into Dr. Tower's eyes for a moment. There was a barely perceptible softening of the doctor's hard, bright gaze.

"What is it?" Then he added jocularly: "Have you no friends?"

Parris did not smile. "No, sir," he said simply.

Dr. Tower flushed a little, whether with embarrassment or annoyance at the turn of the conversation, Parris did not know.

Dr. Tower looked out of the window. "You get used to it."

Parris did not reply to this. Dr. Tower looked back after a moment and went on, almost angrily: "Anyway, there is nobody around here for you. You seem to have a mind—hope I'm not mistaken about it; I'd hate to waste my time."

"I used to have some pretty good friends." There was a kind of protest in his voice.

"Well—you ought not to live too much to yourself." Dr. Tower spoke more gently. "Go on out today and look up somebody. Knock around a little." He slapped the notebooks on the table. "Forget this and your piano for a couple of days, cut classes, get some air."

"All right, sir, I will. Thank you."

He walked down the drive that skirted the Towers' front yard. Cassandra was on the porch. He waved gaily to her, and she lifted her hand in an awkward, childish response.

* * *

As he came in sight of the Livingstone house he saw Drake coming out of the drive. He had Molly, a fat old mare belonging to Mrs. Livingstone, hitched to a shiny new buggy.

"Hey! Hey, Drake!"

Drake was about to turn in the other direction, when he heard him. He stopped. "Why you old country stick-in-the-mud! Where have you been all of this time? I haven't seen you all winter. Hop in."

"Where you going?"

"Nowhere. Just trying the new buggy. Say, how you been? What all you been doing?"

Parris took a deep breath. "Oh, working hard."

"Why aren't you in school today?"

"No classe today. Dr. Tower sent me out, said I needed—said I needed to see you."

"Aw, now!"

"Almost. Said I better go out and see some of my friends."

"Let's go to the country. How about it?" Drake looked pleased.

Parris settled back. The new buggy had rubber tires and rolled softly along the macadamized street.

"How's Louise, Drake?"

Drake grinned. "Fine. How's Cassie?"

"I don't know."

"Say! Do you mean to sit there and tell me you ain't done anything about her yet?"

"Well," Parris felt that he ought to justify himself somehow for something—he was not quite sure for what. He swallowed hard. "Well, I don't ever see her."

"Well, why don't you see her?"

"Dr. Tower makes me use the side door, and I just don't see her."

"I bet I'd find a way. Say, boy. Cassie Tower is—well—well, I'd see her in spite of her old man. What does he do, keep her locked up?"

"I see her on the porch once in a while, but I'm kind of afraid to stop."

As Drake talked Parris felt his spirits rise. There was a contagion in Drake's exuberance. A tension of excitement arose in his throat. He talked, too, more and more freely. It was a fine feeling to have a friend—an especially fine feeling to discover that Drake was really his friend as much now as ever.

The harness jingled with Molly's valiant efforts, the wheels made a pleasant grinding sound in the sandy road, the sun warmed more and more.

Parris frowned a little. "I've been working pretty hard this winter, Drake."

"Sure, I know you have. That's what I'm talking about. You can't keep your face in a book all the time. You got to get out and have some fun."

"I guess I'm kind of peculiar, Drake. I don't know very well just how to have fun. You know—I live way out there and I don't see anybody—I mean in my free time."

"Take some time. You don't work all night, do you? We'll get dates."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1942.

How fortunate to be in a country where spring is welcomed—at least THIS spring.

It is encouraging to note, from many parts of the country, that convicted tire thieves are being given a much longer stretch.

As nearly as can be discerned from this distance, political party leaders in Washington are anxious to have their opponents "forget politics."

Elements of Home Strength

DR. LEE H. FERGUSON, director of student health service at Western Reserve University, speaking to a Nursery Education meeting, stated four principles as basic in preserving home strength. They were a biologically sound and stronger marriage bond, a morally clean family unit, common ideals for parents and children to replace the cocktail civilization which came to an end December 7, and faith in the heart.

There can be no doubt that a marriage bond assumed to be permanent is needed if children of this new age are to be brought up without the danger of broken homes. Common ideals for parents and children which lead them to look for something higher than more and better cocktails are also called for. These require home-staying and home interests for their growth and development. Fortunately there is a general feeling that new and better home-stability is on the way.

If observance of Holy week, and the significance of Good Friday and Easter, can be assumed to exert influence on more than a small percentage of the people, this is a season when recognition of the need for spiritual development is more than ordinarily prevalent.

Common ideals for parents and children, which lead them to aspirations higher than what has been termed a "cocktail civilization," are essentials of a nation striving to prove to a doubting world that the principles of democracy are practicable.

Lew Ayres, 'Conscientious Objector'

THOSE "conscientious objectors" whose scruples against participation in war are an inheritance from preceding generations of consistent followers of a deep-seated religious faith that holds to the doctrine of non-resistance, can at least be credited with honesty and sincerity.

Any sudden development of "conscientious objections," however, on the part of a young man eligible for military service and not theretofore associated with such a religious group, may fairly be regarded with suspicion of expediency.

As, for instance, in the case of screen actor Lew Ayres, who claims exemption from military service on "conscientious objector" grounds and who has been assigned to noncombatant duties in a government camp near Portland, Ore., for the duration of war.

Ayres, the former husband of Ginger Rogers and Lola Lane, was given an A-1 classification by his draft board but entered a plea for assignment as a "conscientious objector."

"I do not go to any church regularly," he said, "but I have a genuine religion of my own. . . . In my opinion we will never stop wars until we individually cease fighting—and that's what I propose to do."

Granting to Lew Ayres, and to others in the relatively small group of "conscientious objectors," the "right" to such a religious or ethical belief, it must be considered fortunate that the doctrine of non-resistance to brutal aggression has not become a dominant influence in the lives of millions whose participation in actual warfare will be required to save this nation from destruction and to spare Americans from the brutalities now being inflicted on men, women and children in Axis-ridden areas.

How easy would be made the task of Hitler and his Axis partners if the attitude of Lew Ayres, visionary idealist, reflected the spirit of America!

Yugoslavs Hard To Handle

THE GROWING German difficulties in Yugoslavia are not the least of their troubles. For one thing, the Italians have different ideas. The German maps show the Yugoslav territories as occupied, the Italians as annexed. Evidently Italy has hopes for territorial gains which Germany does not mean to gratify.

The problem of appeasing this conquered country is something else. Hitler has been trying to weaken his opponents by playing off against each other the three peoples who made up the Yugoslav state. The Croats are promised Serbian territory if they will be good, and the Serbs get like promises of gains from Croatia. The Italians, to whom the Slovenes have mostly fallen, have been milder because they think that friends in Yugoslavia may be well worth having. To this extent they are intriguing against the Germans.

Meanwhile revolt continues in the mountain districts. Pavelitch, the Croatian Quisling whom Hitler has put in charge, tries to put down the insurrection by terrorism carried on by his Ustacha or storm troopers. General Neditch, whom the Germans have set over the Serbians, is less a traitor than a Petain, a Serbian who thinks it wiser for his country to fall in line with Germany. He and Pavelitch are continually at odds with each other, and the Germans have to smooth them down. Nazi troops are continually being weakened by rebel raids—just at a time when they are needed in Russia.

No Soap Shortage Likely

NO SHORTAGE of soap is expected in this country. Housewives need not be tempted to pile up a supply in advance of need. There will be plenty of soap—and for a curious reason. In modern soap-making glycerine is a by-product, and glycerine is one of the most important factors in producing explosives.

Fine and luxurious soaps, made from imported oils, may have to go for a time. But there will be plenty of good, plain American soap, enough for all possible toilet, kitchen and laundry uses.

One thousand miles per hour is predicted by an engineer as the eventual prevailing speed in the air—so the noon sign on the office door may sometime read: "Out for lunch Chicago; back at 1."

Some folks think Hitler is slipping while other believe he is merely slipping another one over on the German people.

"STAR OF INDIA"

Believe Gold Value Will Increase

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Remember the story of the fox whose tail was cut off, and who then went around winning quite a few converts to the notion that tails were just a nuisance?

That is the theory now of some shrewd economists, including Bernard M. Baruch, with respect to gold and silver. The thought is that the huge pile of gold which the United States owns at Fort Knox, and for much of which $35 an ounce was paid, is more likely to be MORE valuable after the war is over than it was before—more likely to be worth MORE than $35 an ounce if at any time a free gold market should be resumed, than less than $35 an ounce.

It is always difficult to predict the future, so let's look at the present. Suppose for some reason the United States government should decide today to repeal the law preventing private individuals or corporations from owning gold. Suppose it should revert to the old policy of paying gold on demand for paper currency, and at the established price of $35 an ounce.

What would happen?

The belief of Baruch and his associates is that there would be such a tremendous demand for gold by private individuals that the government would find no difficulty whatever in trimming down that huge hoard at Fort Knox to the normal reserve requirements for the currency.

BEAR in mind that if the whole gold transaction were "closed" in this manner, the result would be a considerable net profit—some two billion dollars—to the treasury. This time it would be an actual profit. Of course it was charged up as a paper profit a long time ago.

There is, incidentally, very little dissent about this view, because there is an underlying motive—the desire of many people with a little cash to make some sort of hedge against inflation. It is the reason why so many people have bought land, particularly farms, who have no real thought of farming the land themselves, but who think they can sell the land after the value of the dollar has settled down, some years hence, for about the same REAL value they put into it.

People holding that view, and there are a lot of them, many more than have actually bought land or anything else as a hedge against inflation, are afraid that dollars will not be worth anything like as much when that settling down process is over. As they view it, they might have to get twice as many dollars for their land at the end of this period in order to come out even—that is to be able to buy as much flour, or beefsteak, or automobiles, as the dollars paid for the land would have bought.

It is known that President Roosevelt is opposed to inflation, but it is not believed, among these people afraid that the value of their dollars may shrink, that anyone is doing much to prevent a slide. Every time wages and prices rise, of course, a little bit of it occurs.

For there does not have to be any such absurdity as what happened to the German mark. The old French franc was cut to one-fifth of its gold value before the first World war in the readjustments which followed that war. The Italian lira was cut almost as much. So was the Belgian franc.

NOTE that these changes enormously enhanced the value of GOLD in buying THINGS. And most economists believe that gold will continue to buy more and more THINGS no matter what other governments may do about gold, or how they may try to make other foxes think tails are just an impediment!

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"But postmen can't wait for answers, Mrs. McLaughlin."

Man About Manhattan

Red Tape Cutter

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Though everyone knows that Ilka Chase is an actress whose mother is editor of Vogue, not everyone realizes how outspoken she is or what hatred for red tape she carries in her shapely brunet noggin.

They haven't known up till now, that is, but they will when they read her altogether enjoyable reminiscenses and impressions which have been published under the bangup title of "Past Imperfect."

Miss Chase is a strong-minded and self-willed young woman who has variously been called "the Minx in mink" and "the electric brunet." You'll remember her for her part in "The Women" and for various other activities, including two years on the air.

THE episode I wish especially to relay concerns her first marriage, and an actress she worked with in the Stuart Walker company.

"In my Baltimore and Cincinnati days," she recalls, "the theater was more foolish. Love held sway on the stage, and off-stage there were jealousy and affection, tears and laughter and parties, poisonous prohibition gin, and a touch of high life in the person of Miss Julia Hoyt, who had social position. Julia was in the Stuart Walker company, and she was fun and always nice to me. Later on we married and divorced the same man. I got there first, but she lasted longer, and although we rarely see each other now, I would say that our mutual sentiments are friendly if tenuous.

"A month or so after Julia married my ex-husband, I was playing in Chicago, and in going through a trunk which had been sent on to me from New York, I found a box of calling cards engraved 'Mrs. Louis Calhern.' They were the best cards—thin, flexible parchment, highly embossed—and it seemed a pity to waste them, and so I mailed the box to my successor. But aware of Lou's mercurial marital habits, I wrote on the top one, 'Dear Julia,' I hope these reach you in time.' I received no acknowledgment."

WHAT used to drive Miss Chase into fits of impotent rage was what she regarded as the "obvious fence-straddling" of the broadcasting companies so as not to offend Axis sympathizers. At that time the movies considered filming "A Yank in the RAF," but some busybody quibbled that public opinion had not crystalized sufficiently to make it safe for such a picture to be produced. As Miss Chase points out, "He was silenced by the retort that it had crystalized enough to make a production called 'A Yank in the Luftwaffe' inadvisable."

During one interview with Tallulah Bankhead the actress wanted to use the line, "Well, Ilka, I love England. You know I lived there many years." Miss Chase says the line was not allowed because it was "English Propaganda" and the line was edited to read, "I love the English theater."

It's a curious recital of the things that have touched her life, this book-curious because all venom is tinged with laughter . . . There are no mortal blows, only flesh wounds . . . I believed every word of it. I can not say this for every autobiography I have read this year.

Lewis Family 'Take' Much Larger Than Was Revealed, Hits $75,000

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The Washington Merry-Go-Round wishes to correct an earlier statement that John L. Lewis had three relatives on union payrolls whose salaries, plus his own, gave the family an annual "take" of $48,500 from the collections of union dues.

We regret to say that on further investigation we find we erred grievously. We apologize to Mr. Lewis for underestimating his capacities and print below the full Lewis family payroll showing that the miner czar has not three but nine relatives in cushy jobs and that the family "take" is not $48,500 but $70,500:

John L. Lewis, president, United Mine Workers	$25,000*
Kathryn Lewis, daughter, secretary-treasurer, District 50, UMW	7,500*
Denny Lewis, brother, head of United Construction Workers Organizing Committee	10,000*
J. R. Bell, brother-in-law, CIO controller	6,000
Orin Miller, brother-in-law, superintendent of the UMW office building in Indianapolis	5,000
Dan Collins, brother-in-law, CIO organizer	3,600
William Thomas, cousin, superintendent UMW building in Washington	5,000
Margaret Lindig, sister-in-law of Denny, UMW stenographer	2,400
Ann Miller, daughter of brother-in-law Orin Miller, UMW stenographer	2,400
Son-in-law of Floyd Bell, another Lewis brother-in-law, District 50 organizer	3,600
Total Lewis family payroll	$70,500

(*In addition to their big salaries, Lewis, his daughter and brother also have fat expense accounts. What they spend is their secret No figures have ever been revealed, even to union members.)

Imposing as is this payroll list, it still does not tell the whole story.

There is one Lewis relative who is not on a union payroll but who garners a high-bracket income from unions controlled by John L. He is brother-in-law Floyd Bell, an insurance agent. Representative of a surety company, Bell has what amounts to a monopoly on the business of bonding all national, district and local UMW officers and all CIO officials.

His commissions are estimated at $40,000 a year.

This sum, plus the payroll listed above, would bring the total "take" of the Lewis family up to $110,500 a year.

Gene Cox of Georgia.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT bigshots have a bear by the tail and don't know what to do with it.

The bear consists of accusations that Representative Gene Cox of Georgia violated the criminal statute (Title 18, U. S. Code, Sec. 203) which prohibits members of congress from receiving compensation for representing private clients before government agencies.

Most of the justice department big-shots are in a cold sweat over the case and want quietly to bury it. They are scared stiff over the prospect of tangling with Cox. The raucous-voiced little Georgian is a potent figure in the house.

He is a leader of the powerful bloc of Southern, anti-New Deal, labor-baiting Democrats, ranking member of the mighty rules committee, and on close personal terms with house floor chiefs. Also he is a resourceful and tough fighter, especially when under fire.

So most of the justice big-shots want to let Cox off, perhaps, with some private tsk-tsking. But younger members of the department are demanding legal action. They contend that the law is explicit and that it is the duty of the department to enforce it without fear or favor.

Attorney General Francis Biddle has not yet made up his mind. He is not noted for decisive action.

The Case.

THIS is the information in the hands of the justice department:

Station WALB, Albany, Ga., in Cox's district, applied to the federal communications commission for a construction permit to change its frequency. Cox made several visits to the FCC in behalf of WALB. However, his name did not appear on the station's formal application as its attorney of record.

After several hearings, the FCC granted the permit and when WALB opened its new station, Albany newspapers gave Cox much of the credit for putting the project over. They acclaimed him as a potent figure in Washington.

Around this time, Cox received a check for $2,500 from WALB. This check he converted into stock of the station. The justice department has a copy of this check.

Later, Hugh McCarthy, $135-a-month clerk in Cox's congressional office, sent WALB a bill for $226 he claimed was due him for services performed in connection with the permit. In addition to working for Cox, McCarthy also practices law on the side.

WALB refused to pay McCarthy. The station wrote him that Cox already had been paid for the job and the station saw no reason why it should fork over any money to McCarthy.

As far as the justice department knows, McCarthy still is unpaid. If he got any money he hasn't got it from WALB.

An interesting angle of the affair is that for months, Cox has been loudly clamoring for a house probe of the communications commission on the ground that it has a secret Gestapo. He introduced a resolution for such an investigation and has made a number of speeches demanding action on it, and denouncing the FCC.

Under congressional practice, if the probe is ordered, Cox would be chairman of the committee.

Note—Several years ago Cox was disclosed as being the No. 1 nepotist in the house. At that time he had eight relatives on the government payroll for a total take, including his $10,000 salary, of more than $55,000 a year.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The other night I sat across the table from a man who is considered one of the great news editors of these turbulent times.

"Aside from the big battles on this front or that," he said, "the biggest stories of this month and probably the next and the next are those which concern extravagances, waste and chiseling on the part of labor, management and government."

Why? Because letters, telegrams and editorials from you and you have got congress (a few months away from election in the whole House and part of the Senate) in a fine state of jitters.

NO ONE who has been around Congress very long is going to be too much perturbed about a deluge of mail on any specific issue. It's easy to arouse the pressure groups without arousing the real voters in ordinary times. A lobby for some cause gets het up about some pending legislation. The word goes back down the line until it reaches the little people—and they write their congressmen.

Ordinarily the congressmen thumb through this mail, answer it (just for fear it might be a voter), make some notation of it in the Congressional Record, and unless it assumes bandwagon proportions, go on about their business.

This time it's different. In the first place, it can't be determined that any of the mail demanding economies, an end to boondoggling, or a punishment—through new laws—of labor and management who step out of the war produstion line, is coming from any of the old organized pressure groups.

One flood of letters has come from the south and southwest and this sectional source has caused some congressmen to demand an investigation. But I have seen scores from other areas. If Texas and Oklahoma and a few other states have been most vociferous in their demands for a clean-up of the labor-management squabbles and the wage and hour problems, the same can't be said for the complaints against the Office of Civilian Defense and the Office of Government Reports: the NYA, the CCC; and congressional pensions, to mention just a few.

IMPORTANT enough to be included in the Congressional Record, with demands from their recipients that the Truman committee investigate, are such letters as (1) From a big defense contract holder in Connecticut that he is receiving so many questionnaires from sundry defense and government agencies that it takes 50 per cent of his time to answer them; (2) From a well known columnist that near Tucson, Ariz., millions of board feet of scrap lumber, owned by the government, had been burned up on government agents' orders, while hundreds of citizens nearby scoured the countryside for mesquite and other brush to combat their shortage of fuel and keep them from freezing to death.

It has been a long time since this country was aroused to such a consistent fit of writing its congressmen. That fact and the nearness of election has a lot of them jumping when the postman only rings once.

A Farmer's Diary

Spring Scene

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TODAY, in the garden plot the oldest boy had spaded, his mother planted a lettuce bed. Then, spurred by the sunshine and the drumming of a yellow hammer on the maple—stimulated by the cool west wind that defied the springlike murmur of the frogs in the swamp, she brought the broom rake and raked the backyard.

The sky was blue between the naked maple branches; the two small boys and the black and white puppy frolicked. Ruddy laughing faces showed the first flush of tan. White hens pecked sprouting grass blades; crows cawed from the corn stubble; far off a neighbor tuned up his tractor engine; the mail plane echoed southward with the glint of the sunshine on its slender outline.

Tender calamus shoots in the swamp were six inches long. Grass grew green among them. They tasted tender and bitter and good when pulled from the cold water and slipped out of their russet outer sheaths. Water cress beyond the pond breast had sent up delicate green buds that promised pungent peppery salad very soon.

A smudgy smoldering fire burned beside the pond and the burning leaves and sticks and old dry grass added a characteristic spring odor that pleased the nostrils. Looking around the horizon, other smudges of smoke told that almost every farm had an outdoor fire. Above the southern hill hung a dense white smoke cloud that might have been alarming at another season—now it spread along the ridges filling the wind with the smell of burning brush. Some farmer was cleaning up a fencerow.

Fields are drab, except the wheat. Plowing has scarcely started. (One neighbor plowed all night last night.) Buds are swollen only a little—even the catkins still are sheathed. Iris and hardy perennials have scarcely an inch of growth.

But spring is "tripping north" again. Only today a letter came from a friend who has wintered in Tennessee . . . "Down the lot here and in the next one, rows of jonquils march in golden glory; faithful crocuses stretch up their heads in dainty bonnets; across the street a stately weeping willow waves slowly its dainty new green foliage; the abelia, an evergreen shrub that I never saw in the north, is putting out its new leaves, at the some time pushing the old aside. The old leaves have had their day and must give way to the new—as is life everywhere."

CHAPTER XII

Madame Von Eln sat by the fire. It was late, and Parris had gone upstairs to study. She knew that Anna was in the kitchen waiting for her to go to bed. Tonight Anna would have to be patient.

The room was warm, though the fire was low now. The sound of the wind rose and fell in long sighs and howls. Madame wanted to think. She shook her head. No, she didn't want to think. She tried very hard to be reminiscent, but it was not successful. The uneventful years of her girlhood; a first marriage and the birth of Parris' mother; the second marriage to the picturesque but unstable Franz von Eln; his death; her own first struggle; the ensuing poverty; the deaths of Parris' father and mother—how many deaths one counted in a lifetime! —and these happiest years of all her life with Parris to watch over. Now—this time—this day was more important, and more interesting.

She wondered a little just why she so much wanted to live. Parris? Yes, of course. Because he loved her, but more because she loved him. She thought of him and smiled. Then she dozed . . . yes, and because she liked to see the wind moving the tops of the maple trees.

She called Anna.

Anna turned to the fire and raked the ashes from beneath the grate. "Yes, Madame?"

"Well, now, Anna, I was just wondering what would become of you when—when I'm not here any more?"

"Oh, Madame—"

"Have you any money, Anna?"

"Yes, Madame. I have saved everything. I—I shall—should be able to take care of myself. But who will look after Parris?"

Madame drew her shoulders together a little as though a chill draft struck her. "He will have to look after himself, Anna. He's a good boy—I suppose."

"Parris is a good boy." Anna spoke with undoubting emphasis.

"I hope so, Anna, I hope so. I think he is some kind of a gentleman. I shouldn't expect him to be an angel—or want him to be."

"Has Dr. Gordon said—?"

"He gives me one year, or two."

"What can I do for you, Madame, quickly?"

"Nothing, Anna. Just go on as if everything were the same as always. I don't want Parris to be disturbed—"

"He doesn't know about this?"

"He must not know, Anna. We must be as gay as possible, plan things, and appear to be happy. His studies—I want him to do very well. Now, go to bed."

"You are not going to bed yourself?"

"Not yet."

"Then I will wait. I'll just set some bread. Might as well bake tomorrow."

What was Parris like, deeper down than the surface? What did he dream of, look forward to? What did he desire?

The answers to these questions —these all-important questions— would not come from Parris or from her observation of him. Madame's own training had given him an exterior that communicated little, for all its seemingly expressive vivacity. Now, as she thought of it, she realized that he was far less vivacious than he used to be.

Parris was less lively. He talked a good deal but less gaily. He was —she hunted for a description— he was darker. Yes; that described him exactly. She wondered why. She must observe him a bit more closely. Maybe she had been neglecting him a little.

She would try to understand him better. Where she would find her answer — that was another matter. Not in Parris, she thought again, no; not in herself, because they were quite unlike. She tried to recall her daughter, Parris' mother. She had never understood Marian very well. No, she hadn't really liked Marian.

Obviously, she wouldn't be able to understand Parris through his mother. Parris' father, Sumter Mitchell—what an attractive boy he had been! A simple, forthright person. Anyway, he must have given Parris good qualities—more solid ones, she had no doubt, than Parris had from her own blood.

It might have been better if Parris could have had less of her own "foreign" ways, and more of the Mitchell manner. She knew that people commented on her bearing and conduct and thought her peculiar and alien. Well, she had left a wide circle of freedom about him — mental elbowroom, just as she demanded, and had to have, for herself. He had been happier because of that, she was sure.

Later Anna laid her firm, shiny hand under Madame's elbow, and the two women went slowly up the stairs.

Parris came to his door, frowning against the light of the unshaded lamp Anna carried. Madame shook her head. "You are up late."

"So are you, both of you."

"You are studying at this time of night?"

"I'm up late every night, Grand'mere—you know that."

"Well, well. But you must get your sleep. Good night."

He kissed her on both cheeks. "Good night. Good night, Anna." He sighed as he returned to his room. He was tired. There was so much to do every day. Work at Aberdeen was not easy, Dr. Tower demanded that he cover a lot of ground; and his music—he didn't want to neglect practice.

Paris worked hard throughout the winter. He felt that he had moved completely into a new world. He did indeed look thin and a little pale by April.

Dr. Tower, who consistently maintained an impersonal attitude toward his pupil, noticed the changes.

"Better ease up on your work a little, young man."

"Oh, I'm quite all right, sir."

"You don't look it. Leave your notebooks today and get out somewhere. Why don't you walk? Look up some of your friends—"

Parris looked straight into Dr. Tower's eyes for a moment. There was a barely perceptible softening of the doctor's hard, bright gaze.

"What is it?" Then he added jocularly: "Have you no friends?"

Parris did not smile. "No, sir," he said simply.

Dr. Tower flushed a little, whether with embarrassment or annoyance at the turn of the conversation, Parris did not know.

Dr. Tower looked out of the window. "You get used to it."

Parris did not reply to this. Dr. Tower looked back after a moment and went on, almost angrily: "Anyway, there is nobody around here for you. You seem to have a mind—hope I'm not mistaken about it; I'd hate to waste my time."

"I used to have some pretty good friends." There was a kind of protest in his voice.

"Well—you ought not to live too much to yourself." Dr. Tower spoke more gently. "Go on out today and look up somebody. Knock around a little." He slapped the notebooks on the table. "Forget this and your piano for a couple of days, cut classes, get some air."

"All right, sir, I will. Thank you."

He walked down the drive that skirted the Towers' front yard. Cassandra was on the porch. He waved gaily to her, and she lifted her hand in an awkward, childish response.

* * *

As he came in sight of the Livingstone house he saw Drake coming out of the drive. He had Molly, a fat old mare belonging to Mrs. Livingstone, hitched to a shiny new buggy.

"Hey! Hey, Drake!"

Drake was about to turn in the other direction, when he heard him. He stopped. "Why you old country stick-in-the-mud! Where have you been all of this time? I haven't seen you all winter. Hop in."

"Where you going?"

"Nowhere. Just trying the new buggy. Say, how you been? What all you been doing?"

Parris took a deep breath. "Oh, working hard."

"Why aren't you in school today?"

"No classe today. Dr. Tower sent me out, said I needed—said I needed to see you."

"Aw, now!"

"Almost. Said I better go out and see some of my friends."

"Let's go to the country. How about it?" Drake looked pleased.

Parris settled back. The new buggy had rubber tires and rolled softly along the macadamized street.

"How's Louise, Drake?"

Drake grinned. "Fine. How's Cassie?"

"I don't know."

"Say! Do you mean to sit there and tell me you ain't done anything about her yet?"

"Well," Parris felt that he ought to justify himself somehow for something—he was not quite sure for what. He swallowed hard. "Well, I don't ever see her."

"Well, why don't you see her?"

"Dr. Tower makes me use the side door, and I just don't see her."

"I bet I'd find a way. Say, boy, Cassie Tower is—well—well, I'd see her in spite of her old man. What does he do, keep her locked up?"

"I see her on the porch once in a while, but I'm kind of afraid to stop."

As Drake talked Parris felt his spirits rise. There was a contagion in Drake's exuberance. A tension of excitement arose in his throat. He talked, too, more and more freely. It was a fine feeling to have a friend—an especially fine feeling to discover that Drake was really his friend as much now as ever.

The harness jingled with Molly's valiant efforts, the wheels made a pleasant grinding sound in the sandy road, the sun warmed more and more.

Parris frowned a little. "I've been working pretty hard this winter, Drake."

"Sure, I know you have. That's what I'm talking about. You can't keep your face in a book all the time. You got to get out and have some fun."

"I guess I'm kind of peculiar, Drake. I don't know very well just how to have fun. You know —I live way out there and I don't see anybody—I mean in my free time."

"Take some time. You don't work all night, do you? We'll get dates."

ATOM-SMASHER BENEFICIAL IN CANCER CURE

Cyclotron Rays Are Latest Hope In Treatment of Disease.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—After three years of experimentation on 153 cancer patients with radiation created by the cyclotron of the University of California the atom-smasher has been established as a definite beneficial agent in the treatment of that disease.

This announcement was made before the Radiological Society of America by Drs. Robert S. Stone and John C. Larkin, who have been conducting the experiments ever since it was first felt the neutron rays generated by the cyclotron might have a therapeutic value.

Experiments first were tried on rats and other cancer-inflicted rodents until it was known definitely that the rays did break down cancer cells.

Then the experiments began on humans. Only patients accepted were those already regarded as incurable, or those who were not responding to the usual treatments by X-rays, radium, surgery and other methods.

Of the 153 patients who were given the new treatment to date, 24 received the therapy from the original 85-ton cyclotron invented by Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence, Nobel prize winner.

They were not included in the final report on the 129 others whose treatment was given by the more powerful 225-ton cyclotron that was built later.

Of these 129, 60 died, but the other 61 are still living and many of them apparently free of the disease

The two scientists emphasized that the treatment is not to be regarded as a cure-all for cancer, but that there is every reason to hope that it will prove more beneficial than the X-ray, the most powerful anti-cancer weapon to date.

The treatment consists of subjecting the patient to radiation that penetrates diseased tissues. This consists of a neutron ray or beam of atomic particles that are generated when the cyclotron is smashing up other atoms. This ray produces a marked shrinking of the tumor and eventually kills the diseased cells. It is also capable of killing other cells that are not diseased.

Final results of the full possibilities of the cyclotron in this field of therapy can only be announced, after five years of experimentation, the two scientists said, this being the standard period of experimentation with all cancer treatments.

The new experiments, they said, will be carried out on different types of cancer involving the throat, the head and the prostate gland. It is only after experiments have been conducted on all types of cancer that a final report can be made on the therapeutic value of the neutron ray.

Removing Snow Hazard From Building

While scores of persons watched from North Main street yesterday, firemen shoveled huge quantities of snow from the ledge along the top of the Maxwell company store to prevent the snow from sliding off and injuring pedestrians. Firemen were called to the scene after one snow slide damaged the roof of a car parked near the building. No one was injured.

Nutrition Study Becomes Vital In Nation at War

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—There is no substitute for accurate knowledge nor is there virtue in ignorance when it comes to food for a nation at war, believes Dr. Martha E. Davis, instructor in home economics on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"In a war emergency, foods are needed for others as well as ourselves. Knowing the essential foods, the homemaker can keep the family in good health and prevent dietary deficiencies so evident in the last war and thus make an important contribution to victory," said Dr. Davis.

A "dividend" in the plan to conserve foods for war emergencies is the fact that "by an intelligent choice of food women can have a well-balanced diet yet one that is low in calories and results in a loss of weight. The days of starvation-reducing diets and their deficiencies are past," declared Dr. Davis.

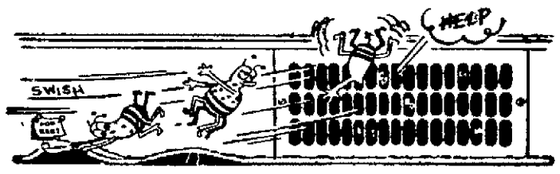
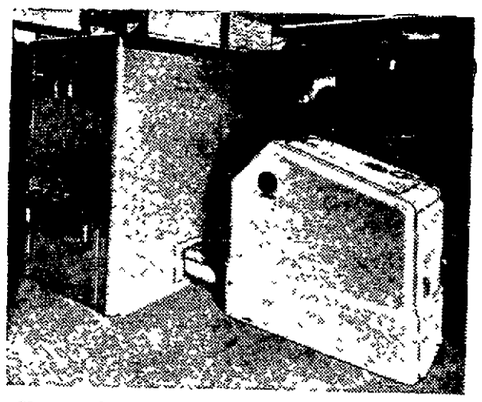
Science has proved that there are over 1700 different kinds of germs and bacteria in ordinary air. Many of these are harmless. Some are dangerous. The important thing is that science has also proved that most of the germs and bacteria cling to the dust, dirt and other particles that float in the air. The filters in a blower-filter unit remove 90 per cent or more of these dust and dirt particles. Therefore, they remove the germs and bacteria that ride on them. That is one reason why winter air conditioning makes a home a healthier place in which to live. In addition, by removing the dust and dirt it makes your home a much cleaner home. Let us tell you more about this important phase of winter air conditioning... and about the savings in fuel it makes possible. You'll be tremendously interested, and you'll be surprised at how inexpensive it is to add a blower filter unit to your present heating system.





How would you like to have a basement like this? A modern winter air conditioning unit, with automatic coal stoker, occupies very little space.

LEASE COUNTY FAIRGROUND TO UNITED STATES

Crawford Commissioners Say 70-Acre Site To Be Used For Duration.

BUCYRUS — Crawford county commissioners today announced that the 70-acre Crawford county fairgrounds has been leased by the United States government "for the duration."

Persons having property on the fairgrounds have been advised to move their equipment at once.

The lease negotiated by Lt. J. C. Robinson from the office of division engineers, U. S. Engineering department, Cleveland, provides for payment in the sum of one dollar, and becomes effective at once.

For what purpose the grounds will be used was not made known by Lt. Robinson. Although not officially announced, it is believed that the lease is a step toward the taking over by the U. S. army of the New York Central shops, which was hinted by army officials in a visit to Bucyrus several weeks ago. Army officers at that time indicated that living barracks would be constructed on the fairgrounds to house soldiers who would be employed in war work at the N. Y. C. shops.

In a joint session Bucyrus city council and Aumiller park commission, set up a schedule of rates for operation of the new swimming pool at the park during the coming season.

Plans were also outlined for improving the park, including the establishment of drives, layout of park buildings and recreational facilities, including the ball diamond, tennis and shuffle board courts, horse shoe courts and picnic ovens.

Members of the park commission are making a study of parks in neighboring towns before completing plans for the operation of the park.

COUNTY'S 4-H CLUBS TO PLAN 1942 PROJECTS

Organizational Meetings To Be Held In Communities Throughout County.

Boys and girls in Richland county's rural areas will begin their 1942 4-H club organization work Monday night at mobilization meetings in communities throughout the county.

The county's farm boys and girls will have their part to play this summer in helping to produce more food for the nation's armed forces and the democracies fighting with the United States, County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

He said he anticipated a club enrollment as large or larger than last year despite the fact that a number of the older boys will be employed in defense industries this year and won't have time for 4-H club activities.

At the meetings Monday, scheduled for 8 p. m., prospective club members will meet with advisors and leaders to plan the year's program and select club projects.

The county agent and Miss Elizabeth Bay, home demonstration agent, have sent enrollment cards to last year's club members and asked them to enlist new members to boost the club enrollment this year.

The clubs start their projects in the spring and display their work at the county fair. Projects include the raising of livestock and farm produce, sewing and cooking and gardening.

CALL VOLSTEAD TO CURB WETS

City Asks Prohibitionist To Aid In Fight Against Saloon Opening.

(By United Press)

GRANITE FALLS, Minn.—Andrew Volstead, "father of prohibition," has been asked to lead a court fight to prevent establishment of a saloon in his home town.

As a result of a peculiar set of circumstances, Granite Falls—county seat of a dry county—has been granted permission by the state attorney general to turn wet. This, drys claim, is in direct contradiction to state local option laws.

The circumstances are these:

The town is divided by the Minnesota river which forms the county line. Yellow Medicine county, of which Granite Falls is the county seat, voted dry at the last county option election. Chippewa county, in which the eastern portion of the town falls, went wet.

The wet faction in the dry half of town thereupon petitioned State Attorney General J. A. A. Burnquist asking exemption from the county option and requesting a special election to determine whether a municipal liquor store could be established. The election held in January, approved the liquor store movement.

Results of the election, however, placed the dry county in the position of operating, through its county seat, a liquor store in cooperation with a wet county.

It also created a furor in the dry population of the town.

Dry leaders in Yellow Medicine county have called on the aging former congressman, sponsor of the Volstead Act, to "vindicate the sincerity of his prohibition stand" by heading an appeal to the state supreme court.

Walter Catlett is also cast. "No Hands On the Clock," with Chester Morris and Jean Parker, shares the bill.

Runaway Barrage Balloon Deposits Auto In Treetop

LONDON —(INS)— Most unusual antic of an escaped barrage balloon of this war occurred in Ballyclare, Antrim (northern Ireland).

The trailing cable of a balloon that had broken away from its anchor in a high wind caught in an automobile in which a man and three women were traveling.

The car was lifted in the air and gently deposited in a nearby tree after the occupants had managed to open the doors and jump out.

Caught in the tree, the car anchored the balloon which was shot down by troops.

It fell on high tension wires and for some time Ballyclare was without electricity.

As Wreckers Finish Demolishing Church

The blackened walls of the First Congregational church which stood for several weeks after the building was razed by fire in February are rapidly being reduced to a huge pile of bricks as wreckers complete the demolition of the structure. This picture, taken by The News-Journal photographer, shows how the walls and chimneys of the former landmark have been pulled down. Workmen are still looking for the church cornerstone which is believed hidden by rubble near the foundation of the building.

Proposes Youths Be Educated As Defense Backstop

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—In the belief that boys now 14 will see service before this war is over, David W. Armstrong, executive director of the Boys' Club of America, has proposed a "Victory Volunteers" corps composed of 300,000 to 400,000 American youths as "a second line of defense."

The boys would be taught physical fitness and manual skill to prepare them for eventual service with the army or in defense factories, Armstrong explained to officials of 20 boys' clubs in the Philadelphia area.

In addition to building up their bodies and skills, he said, the boys will be mobilized for various forms of community service, such as collecting valuable wastes.

"Let's not make the mistake of England," he cautioned, "where the boys' clubs were closed with the outbreak of the war. Today they're reopening those clubs, because they realize boys will win this war."

The electric eel, found in the rivers of Brazil, attains a length of six feet.

How to Keep Fit For Defense

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Today I wish to propose a partial program for promoting stronger, healthier parents and children in America; in the interest of defense.

1. That every physically able child and adult should take walks; from half a mile to three miles a day whenever the weather permits.. That many persons with influence among those of their own age or social group should organize and lead honest-to-goodness hiking clubs.

Walking To School.

2. That all school children physically well, except some of the rural children, walk to and from school when the distance does not exceed two miles. That mothers who wish to protect the younger children to and from school walk with them instead of taking them in cars. That those children who do not walk a reasonable distance to school be required at school to walk or run under supervision outdoors on the school grounds one or more miles a day.

3. That all children and youths be put through, at school or college, daily setting-up exercises similar to those given recruits in the army and navy, and that their teachers lead them or participate in these exercises.

4. That parents and children within a mile or so of church walk here to Sunday school and church services; that those who own the best cars lead off with good example in this patriotic endeavor.

5. That all parents with children under fourteen see that these children automatically make a bee-line for their house when the street lights appear.

6. That high school students and their parents who have a deep sense of social obligation and patriotism band together vowing in solemn covenant, to enforce a midnight curfew for themselves.

7. That all inter-scholastic contests be discontinued among high schools and colleges for the duration, so that all interests might be turned to a workable intra-mural program of athletics that will reach every student. That the tons and tons of silver and bronze trophies which first face you on entering high school buildings be scrapped for defense materials and the money from them be given to the Red Cross.

8. That all the usual pomp and luxury attending school commencements be discontinued for the duration, such as costly year books, class pins, invitations, corsages and the like. Let all school authorities require simple and inexpensive clothes worn at commencement, and set the stage for the commencement dance or party so that no student will have to pay much to be present. That the school orchestra and not an expensive band play at the party. This is in the interest of healthy democracy and defense. If the class wishes to do something to show class spirit, let them buy some defense savings bonds and contribute these to the school library.

Voluntary Sacrifice.

Some youths, even some parents, reading these suggestions will call them absurdly severe. They won't two years hence. Such sacrifices as these I have suggested will appear almost as mockery of the sacrifices which will be forced upon us and our children as the war continues.

A prayer for parents which I have written, may be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it; also a number of prayers for the young child.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"YES, I have been married for a number of years," I told Professor Diswell, and he gave an acquiescent nod.

"Jack is also married, is he not?" he asked, and I jerked to sudden wondering attention. The old savant's memory must be failing, I thought, for Katherine had shown me years ago the beautiful piece of Georgian silver the old professor sent them as a wedding present after they returned from France.

Becomes Suspicious

But it was not my place. I reminded myself, to refresh his memory, then as I murmured a casual "Oh yes, years ago," I wondered if it would be of any use to show the sheet of cryptograms in Jack Bickett's handwriting.

Another note of caution sounded in the back of my brain. Could we count upon the discretion of Professor Diswell, with his dulled perceptions and treacherous memory? And then, with a sudden start, I recalled the undertone of mockery in the demeanor of the sinister-looking gardener who had challenged my entrance.

Was that man perhaps in league with the gangsters in the armored car who had passed us on the highway, and who we had learned were also seeking the Diswell home?

I rebuked my imagination sharply, but I could not help a certain wariness in approaching the subject of the cryptic characters on the sheet of paper which I carried in my bag. In the picture my imagination had painted on my way to the old professor's home, I had seen myself bringing out the paper immediately following the first enthusiastic exchange of greetings which I had been sure would follow my appearance.

But despite the fact that I realized "time was of the essence," with every minute bringing the gangsters nearer, I could not bring myself either to bring out the paper or to warn the old man that trouble, sinister and menacing, was nearing his home.

I would wait a minute or two more, I decided, and guide myself by his actions and speech. But he appeared to be in no hurry to begin any conversation, and from somewhere—probably from my already overheated imagination, I told myself scornfully—I suddenly received the impression that he was watching me covertly.

My impression might be correct at that, I reasoned the next second, using the premise that he had not recognized me when I addressed him. He had now only my word that I was Jack Bickett's cousin.

When he finally broke the silence, it was to put a masked question that might easily mean he considered me genuine, or just as easily that he was testing me.

"I have not seen or heard from Jack for years," he said. "I do hope this visit means that you bring me a message from him."

I sent him a mental "thank you." He had shown me a way out.

Explains Errand

"I am so sorry," I said, "but I have none. Neither his wife nor I have had any word from him for a long time. We are terribly worried about him, and finally I thought of you. I knew in the old days how close you were to Jack in the studies he was pursuing, and I thought he might have written you of what he was doing now, in the line which always has so interested you. That is the reason I came here."

I started to my feet as I finished in a moment of stark panic. My chair was in front of a closed door, and from behind it came a queer, gurgling, choked sound, a terrible thing of pain and entreaty.

Self Enlarged Faults Cause Girl Misery

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I think I'm the most unhappy girl who ever lived. I'm terribly shy, sensitive and so afraid to meet people because I think they'll find me dull and a bore.

"Some call me prettier than the average girl. I've had a high school education and have nice clothes and a lovely home, and dance well. But I'm so sensitive that I never make a hit.

"If I go to a dance, I imagine my partner is trying to get rid of me, and if someone doesn't cut in immediately, I make some sort of excuse to leave him. No boy has ever really loved me.

"It's gotten so that no one will even invite me anymore, because they know how shy I am. Will you please answer this letter, because I'm sure you never had a letter like this one before.

Miserable.

If I had a penny for every letter I've had almost exactly like yours, I'd be rich. And while I'm always sympathetic with bashful, lonely girls, I'm going to give you a scolding.

The chief reason you're unhappy and lonesome is that you think too much of yourself, your shyness and sensitiveness. If you started with the idea of making the people you meet have a good time, and forget about your own feelings, you'd probably be a great social success.

Not every girl is prettier than the average. Some have the handicap of downright ugliness to overcome. Yet, even with that people like to have them around.

You dance well, your clothes are pretty and you have a nice home. For goodness sake, what are you "miserable" over? You should see some of the letters I get from girls who have such wretched homes that they can't invite their friends to come to see them. Every penny they make is required to feed the family and pay the rent, and they are as shabby as scarecrows, never going anywhere on that account.

First, try to forget yourself then do something to make things pleasant for other people. Offer your help to the Red Cross. There never was a time in history when cooperation was needed more than it is at present. Ask your church what you can do there to help.

Get busy, lend a hand, and stop thinking how sensitive and misunderstood you are. Perhaps there is a mother in your neighborhood who is overworked. Offer your services to her to care for her children while she goes to the movie for a little recreation. Or perhaps you can help some child with his lessons. Any one of these things is more productive of happiness than coddling one's miseries.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 3
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

PERHAPS this day will incite to definite, decisive and drastic action in all the affairs, business as well as personal. The sharp change may concern the interest or furthering of public relations or the welfare of collective, community or fraternal groups. Young and sentimental persons may have particular influence in current matters. All, however, are subject to duplicity, misrepresentation or trickery, and call for particular caution and discretion to avoid major dangers and attain the most ambitious ends.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden, drastic and decisive change or activities in which public welfare or community or social advancement are involved. Young and emotional people may be the subject of much high purpose and ambition. But all matters may be under a menace of fraud, deception, treachery or misconstruction, unless much discretion and vigilance be exercised. With precaution, gain, progress and happiness may loom in the personal and domestic or social life. Shun extravagance and show.

A child born on this day should be highly talented in artistic or other creative lines, in which it will be enterprising and ambitious, with intuition and imagination. It may be quite self-indulgent.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PUTTING ON A SHOW

Your job as declarer is usually to play the hand in the safest, surest, sanest, simplest way that will attain your objective. But if you had been playing all evening with opponents who considered you a wizard and had not found a single opportunity to impress them with something intricate, wouldn't you go out of your way a bit to make an unusually fancy play if you saw a chance to do it? You certainly would. And you also would hope that they would not realize you could have obtained the same result by a much simpler method.

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	5 ♣

West led his heart K and followed with the Q. A bit of study showed South that his sound way to make the contract was to ruff that trick with the club 10, cash two top clubs and then lead his three top diamonds until one of them was ruffed—a plan which would work if the defenders' trump J was singly guarded. After that he could use the club 8 to the 9 as an entry to the dummy to use the diamonds for two spade discards, giving up a spade at the end.

This declarer, however, saw a way to be fancy. Instead of ruffing the second heart, he discarded the diamond A on it. Next he won the spade switch with the A, took two high clubs, followed by the diamond K and Q, then led the club 8 to the 9. The diamonds then furnished three spade discards. When this worked, his opponents thought he was wonderful. But where would he have been if the club J had been held by the defender who had three trumps? However, even then the sounder plan could have been thwarted if that defender failed to ruff the third high diamond.

How should South play for 3-No Trumps on this deal after West leads the diamond J?

Pillsbury's Vegetable Chowder Au Gratin

1. Combine 2 c. diced raw potatoes, cooked, ½ c. sliced onions, cooked, 1 c. each chopped celery and carrots, cooked; mix lightly. 2. Combine 5 Tbsps. butter and 5 Tbsps. Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour in saucepan over direct heat. (That creamy, appetizing appearance of Pillsbury's Best is one result of the care with which this flour is milled. Every single hour during milling, samples are tested to insure this inviting color.) Add 2½ c. milk gradually; stir constantly; cook until thick and smooth. Add 1½ tsps. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, and vegetables. 3. Turn into 2-qt. casserole. Top with the following CHEESE STRIPS: 4. Sift and measure 1½ c. Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour, add 2¼ tsps. baking powder (or 1½ tsps. double-acting) and ½ tsp. salt; sift together. (These strenuous times call for endurance, sound nerves, and the ability to stand up under hard work. That's why the two B-vitamins have been added to Pillsbury's Best—plus iron to help build red blood. These added nutrients make no change in the appearance, taste, or baking quality of the flour.) 5. Cut in ¼ c. shortening until quite fine; add ½ c. grated nippy cheese. 6. Add ½ c. milk, about; mix until all flour is dampened. 7. Knead lightly for a few seconds on floured board. (Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour is your best defense against baking failure. Pillsbury's Best is Bake-Proved before it reaches you! Roll out to about ¼-in. thick; cut into ¾-in. strips. 9. Place criss-cross over mixture, making 3 layers of strips. Brush with milk. 10. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 25 to 30 min. Garnish with pimiento. Scrap Seized on Ohioan's Farm

When the Eby brothers, farmers near Dayton, O., refused to sell some 10,000 tons of scrap metal to dealers, the federal government stepped in and seized the scrap, "enough for a medium-sized battleship," according to one government official. The Eby brothers, James, Jake and Owen Eby, will receive $4 a ton for the metal, which was dumped into a ravine to prevent soil erosion. The scrap, consisting of refrigerator parts rejected by the General Motors corporation, which paid the Ebys $240 a year for the last 10 years for the privilege of dumping the metal into the ravine, was 50 feet deep, an acre in area.

Orders Bible Be 'Retranslated' Into Chinese

BOSTON—(INS)—Chiang Kai-Shek, generalissimo of China who first became a Christian so he might marry the Wellesley-educated Mei-ling Soong and now observes a half-hour of religious meditation every morning, wants the Bible "re-translated" into Chinese.

Dr. George W. Sheppard, a missionary who was personal advisor to Chiang for five years, says the Chinese leader believes Christianity was originally an Oriental religion with foundations in the Far East. Orientals, he thinks, are more capable of understanding its precepts than Occidentals.

In the translation that Chiang has ordered, the history of China will run in parallel columns, patterned in the Hebrew fashion.

Dr. Sheppard believes that the conversion of their "strong man" will induce a widespread adoption of Christianity among Chinese after the war.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—You will recall the old wheeze about the would-be borrower who won his bet with his banker that the financier's glass eye was not such perfect work that the customer couldn't tell it from the natural eye. He did so accurately and explained that he was able to do it because the glass eye showed at least a spark of human sympathy.

Gen. Johnson.

Apparently this fiscal phenomenon is spreading. The U. S. treasury department is considering allowing as a deduction from income for tax purposes, all above a certain percentage of income which is expended for necessary medical attention.

That should have been done long ago. As one who never before has needed much doctor's care, and who, until recently, had even that taken care of, as part of an army officer's compensation, by the very competent army medical corps, this subject is one which the present writer has completely overlooked.

"It never rains but it pours" and of late your correspondent has needed the most expensive kind of civilian medical care, both for himself and his family. It has been an eye-opener which the doctors frankly recognize as a kind of curse.

Much of this kind of treatment is just too expensive to be paid for by many taxpayers. If they unhappily get in the line of fire, they either just die, or suffer whatever other terrible consequences happen to be part of the ailment. The treasury seeks to relieve a part of this hardship.

This is due to no greed in the medical profession. Most good doctors give an astonishing proportion of their time to free clinics, but in all too many instances the mere items of medical supply and hospitalization just have to be paid for by somebody, and the facilities for this are grossly inadequate.

The charitable institutions, supported by endowment and other gifts, are languishing by reason of lowered interest rates on principal and the overwhelming burden on individual incomes now being borne or soon to be suffered.

There are darker days ahead. Many of our best medicos already have been called to service by the war and we are on the verge of calling to war duty tens of thousands of both doctors and nurses, and the government properly always takes the best in these professional fields.

The proposed action of the treasury will help only a little way, and in a very limited field, but it may save many a useful life, or at least relieve considerable pain and suffering.

It promises no ultimate gain to the taxpayer—except that he will have a little more than the irreducable minimum with which to care for and relieve his dependents.

It is an intelligent noble change that the treasury department is considering. It should go through without obstruction.

URGES BOARD TO FIX LIMIT ON WAR PROFIT

Sen. Taft Makes Proposal as Administration Seeks Ceiling Compromise.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Senator Taft (R., Ohio) proposed today creation of a board to fix ceilings on war profits, while administration leaders moved to compromise a 6 per cent profit limitation inserted by the house in a pending military appropriations bill.

Taft told reporters he had little doubt that the senate appropriations committee would strike the house amendment out of the $18,301,000,000 military measure. However, Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board and army and navy officials were working on a substitute which they planned to present to the committee.

Nelson was reported to have told the committee yesterday that flat limitation was unworkable. Agreeing with Nelson, Taft said he was drafting an amendment which would set up a board of army, navy and war production experts, charged with fixing the margin of profit that could be made on individual military items.

For instance, he said, this board could establish a fair profit for the manufacture of a medium tank or of a certain type of airplane, making all revenue above that amount returnable to the treasury.

"I don't think you can successfully set a flat profit limitation on everything," Taft said. "In some instances, 2 per cent might be a very fair profit for the amount of capital necessary to manufacture a certain military article, while in others, the percentage of profit might have to be much higher because of the slow turnover."

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky likewise has declared that the imposition of an over-all limitation on profits would be ineffective.

Barkley said he thought the question could be handled more intelligently in the new tax bill but Senator Byrd (D., Va.) said it was likely that profit amendments would be advanced April 20 when the senate argues a motion to take up the Connally bill to permit the government to seize strike-bound war production plants.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and his deputies today were trying to figure out the case of a former "trusty" at the county jail who became intoxicated, met with an "accident," and was taken to General hospital last night, only a few hours after he was released from jail for petty larceny. He was one of the most reliable "trusties" the sheriff's staff has found in a long time, working hard without orders, and saving his money, officers said. He received inuries to his hands and arms last night in a mysterious manner.

If you think an empty toothpaste or shaving cream tube doesn't amount to very much in helping the nation's war effort, you'll be interested in this. War department officials estimate that there's enough tin in 60 tubes to solder all the electrical connections in a medium-sized bomber. Under a new War Production board order, an empty tube must be turned in by everyone who buys a tube of toothpaste, shaving cream, or face cream.

POLICE SEIZE MAN, 20, AFTER LONG PURSUIT

War Worker Kidnaped, Forced To Drive 900 Miles Without Food or Sleep.

(By International News Service)

PONTIAC, Mich. — Diminick Piccone, 20-year-old prison parolee, confessed today, state police said, that he shot and killed a 71-year-old farmer because of an old grudge, murdered another aged man during a "scuffle," and also killed a third man "because he got very fresh."

This, and his kidnaping of a fourth man, all occurred within the space of 30 hours and covered a 900-mile odyssey of crime, officers said.

Ciccone, who was released from prison only two weeks ago, was taken into custody early this morning three miles north of Otisville in Genesee county when state troopers overtook the car in which he and Ray Thorpe, Pontiac war worker, were riding.

Thorpe was at the wheel. Between the times of the first murders on Tuesday night and his capture this morning, Piccone had forced his captive to drive him on a wild tour that took them as far uorth as Cadillac and as far south as Detroit, Jackson and Concord.

Twenty hours after a statewide hunt started, Piccone and Thorpe drove by the homes where two of the murders occurred and several police cars were bunched, it was said.

The three murder victims and what Piccone allegedly had to say about the death of each follow:

Cassius Barber, 72, a farmer living near Oxford, shot down as he sat in his kitchen "because he beat me once when I was about 11 years old."

C. Romaine Potter, 75, a cousin and next-farm neighbor of Barber, killed in his home "when he grabbed at my gun and told me to get out."

Carl McKenzie, (the latest victim) 46, a farmer near Concord, shot down from behind last night because he "got very fresh and wanted to take my license number."

Thorpe, 51, a neighbor of Potter and Barber, was kidnaped after Potter was killed. Thorpe was forced at gun point to watch the murders of Barber and McKenzie, it was said.

Piccone said he did not intend to kill his captive because he needed him to drive.

Thorpe said in their long drive he had only an hour's sleep and nothing to eat or drink. He had to be assisted from the car.

The pair was taken to Pontiac.

As Piccone emerged from the car with hands upraised police said he told them:

"I would've taken a shot you guys only Thorpe was too nervous."

Its membership includes: A. T. Volwiler of Ohio university, Harvey DeWeerd of Denison university, Eugene Rigney of the Ross County Historical society, Chillicothe, and Mrs. H. E. Longsworth of Lima, secretary of the Allen County Historical society.

JURORS WEIGH FRAUD EVIDENCE

Consider Case Against 35 Men Accused In Cemetery Case.

COLUMBUS—A federal court jury deliberated today the case of 35 men accused of mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale of burial lots in three central Ohio cemeteries.

The case went to the jury yesterday after more than six months of testimony by scores of witnesses, including only one defendant, Robert Marshallon vice president and general manager of the Marion firm which promoted the lot sales. The jurors deliberated for an hour then recessed until this morning.

U. S. Judge Robert R. Nevin, in a two-hour and 10-minute charge, told the jury each of the defendants could be found innocent or guilty of any or all the 10 counts in the indictments.

He said the fact that none but Marshallon testified in his own behalf did not reflect on the guilt or innocence of the others. Nevin declared that selling cemetery lots or taking applications for them was not unlawful unless used as a vehicle to perpetrate fraud.

Lots were sold in Forest Glen at Marion, Glen Rest at Columbus and Glen Haven at Springfield.

Indictments were returned against 44 defendants in November, 1940, but since then four have died, one pleaded guilty, two entered nolo contendre pleas, one was dismissed and one case was continued because of an illness.

U. S. District Attorney Calvin Crawford contended that the defendants promised profits of 25 to 100 per cent on $1,854,000 received from investors. He stated the total return promised was $3,165,000, but that only $803,950 was paid.

CHILD BORN AS LIFEBOAT ROCKS ON ATLANTIC AFTER TORPEDOING

(By Associated Press)

NORFOLK — Courage was the only necessity his mother and his doctor had when Jesse Roper Mohorovicic decided to enter this life Sunday night in a packed lifeboat plunging through darkness and 15-foot Atlantic waves. So they used much of it with success.

The eight-pound baby boy's birth amidst the rolling waves followed the torpedoing by an Axis submarine of an American passenger-cargo ship on which Mrs. Desanka Mohorovicic, 28, of New York, was traveling. Three crewmen were killed and 29 other persons were still missing today, but the mother, her baby and 87 other survivors reached Norfolk safely. Earlier reports had said the baby was born at the time of the torpedoing.

Young Jesse was born thirteen hours after the launching of the lifeboat carrying 24 persons. The mother, wife of an attache of the Yugoslav consulate of New York, had then been in labor three or four hours.

Dr. L. H. Conly, of Brooklyn, N. Y., ship's doctor, suffered from the fracture of two ribs received in a drop from the ship into the lifeboat.

He had no anesthesia and only the "simple instruments" of the life boat's medical kit.

A sail, only cover at hand—was stretched across one end of the lifeboat as a makeshift protection for the mother, and the job was done.

Jesse did his part by living out the next 24 hours until a rescue vessel came, cradeled in a woman's turban and tucked beneath his mother's dress against the cold wind of the sea.

The infant, his mother and a two-year-old sister, Visna, were in a Norfolk hospital today, showing no ill effects from the experience.

The crew of the rescue ship and surviving passengers put together $210 and presented it to Mrs. Mohorovicic.

The doctor, who told the story to newsmen here, said of Mrs. Mohorovicic:

"She was a brave and lovely woman."

SEES DISSOLUTION

PUPILS STRIKE

Remain Away From Classes at Conneaut in Dispute.

CONNEAUT — (AP) — Striking Conneaut high school students, protesting the demotion of Principal V. R. Henry, gathered on downtown street corners today to pass out handbills demanding a special school board meeting.

Only 15 of the school's 436 pupils reported for classes which continued today in spite of the walkout.

The strike started yesterday after School Superintendent Norman Kuntz announced that Henry, Senior high school principal for 19 years, would be replaced next school year by M. D. Adams, 40, now principal of the Junior high school here.

Students remained away from classes for the second day carried through the business districts banners reading: "We Want Henry."

Vaccination for Typhoid Urged In Ohio 'Epidemic'

ST. MARYS —(AP)— Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, sent typhoid serum here today and urged vaccination of all residents of this community where the water supply has been under scrutiny since 400 were stricken with an intestinal ailment five days ago.

Markwith remarked that "often such outbreaks are followed in two or three weeks by an outbreak of typhoid," although there were no typhoid germs in water tested by health engineers.

A free vaccination program is being sponsored by the St. Marys Rotary club. A public clinic will be set up in a theater lobby.

G. A. Hall, state health department engineer, continued an investigation after reporting that unchlorinated water from two condemned wells had been pumped into the city distribution lines. He also found a cross connection between the city supply and a factory system using canal water.

Residents continued to boil water for drinking and cooking. The malady has abated with no one apparently suffering serious effects.

PUBLIC LEARNS U. S. HAS THREE ACK-ACK TYPES

Anti-Aircraft Guns Credited With Bagging Bomber High Over Corregidor.

(Editor's Note: The amazing feat of United States anti-aircraft gunners at Corregidor in shooting down a Japanese bomber from a height of five and a half miles is discussed in the following article by Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author.)

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG
(Written for International News Service)

NEW YORK—"An enemy airplane flying at an altitude higher than 27,000 feet was shot down by our anti-aircraft artillery." No portion of a war communique has aroused more interest than this statement about a hostile air raid on the fortress of Corregidor.

Almost everyone I have talked to has voluntarily mentioned this report with apparent great surprise that a plane higher than five miles in the air could be brought down by anti-aircraft artillery.

In addition to any secret anti-aircraft weapons now being developed by our army which we in the general public have no right to know about, our service has an anti-aircraft gun with a caliber of slightly more than four inches. It has an effective vertical range of 36,900 feet, or better than seven miles high, and amazing as it may seem this gun, though loaded by hand, can shoot 25 shots per minute. This weapon is not mobile. It is fired from a fixed base.

Our next smallest anti-aircraft cannon has a bore slightly larger than three and a half inches. It is mobile and has an extreme effective vertical range of better than six miles. It also can fire 25 shots per minute and even though the gun itself weighs eight and a half tons, it can be set up and put into action within four minutes.

In all, it is publicly known that we have three anti-aircraft guns which can fire effectively at planes higher than 20,000 feet and the smallest of these three has the terrific rate of fire of 30 shots per minute.

These guns are not fired blindly. We have the last word in gun sights for this type of work and well-trained veteran artillerymen become amazingly accurate. Even though the casualty rate for attacking airplanes occasioned by anti-aircraft guns is not greater than 10 to 25 per cent, the moral effect on the bomber crews is terrific and for this reason their planes are usually held to very high altitudes.

The gun crews on Corregidor are trained, seasoned soldiers, and since Dec. 7 have become real veterans of war. They have been blessed by having two of our most efficient fighting generals, Douglas MacArthur and Jonathan Wainwright, as their commanders

MADE FROM COFFEE POT

BOSTON—(U.P.)—A 45-year-old U. S. sailor on shore patrol duty claims the world's most unusual set of teeth. Mike Labome fashioned his upper and lower plates from a discarded aluminum coffee pot. He said his regular plates broke so often "I decided to make some that could take a beating."

CHARM REVIEW DRAWS ENTRIES

Scores of Mansfield mothers have already made application to enter their children in the "Charming Child Review" to be held at the Park theater June 10.

The screen possibilities of the children will be judged in the review. Separate photographs will be taken of each child entered in the contest.

Using the photographs, which will be taken to show all the child's charm and personality, judges will select several to appear in the charm review.

All the mothers need do to enter their children in the review is to register their child at the theater and to await notice for the time to appear for photographing.

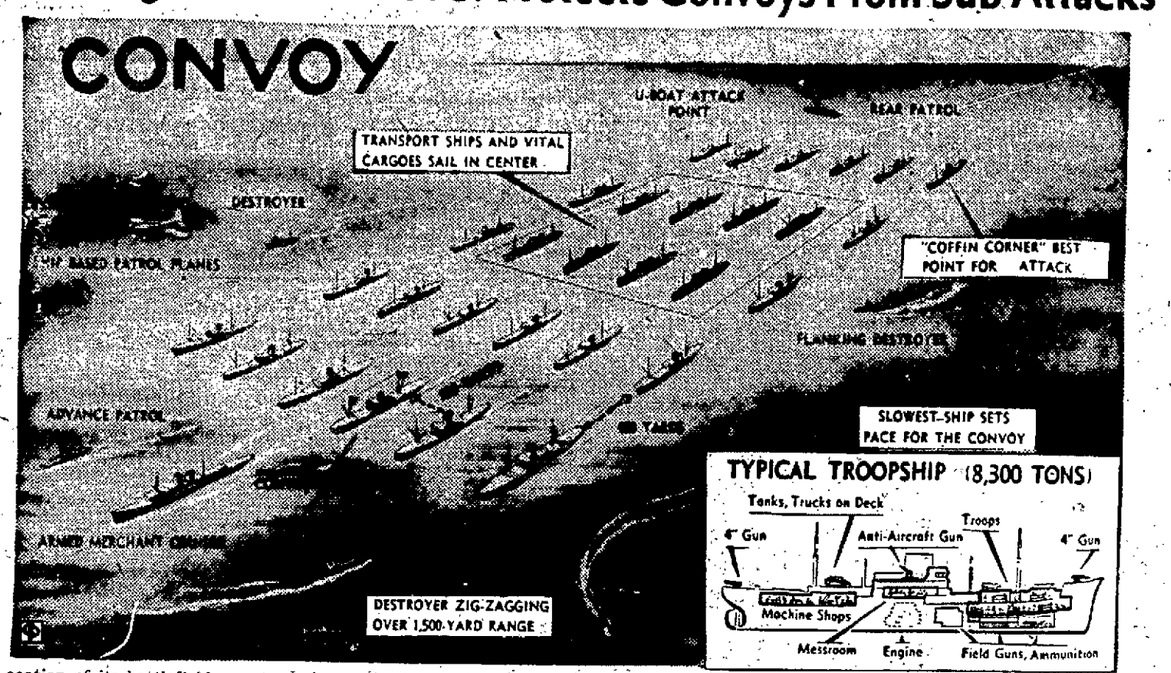
Drawing Shows How U. S. Protects Convoys From Sub Attacks



Location of its battlefields on the far sides of the Pacific and Atlantic oceans makes it necessary for the United States to transport troops, equipment and supplies thousands of miles under constant menace of enemy submarine attack. Merchant ships and transports usually sail in convoys for protection. The drawing above shows how a small convoy is arranged with destroyers zigzagging back and forth and around it. Ships carrying the most important cargoes are placed in the center of the convoy. The rear corners are the most difficult to defend. Inset shows arrangement of a merchant ship used as a troop transport.

Fleet 'Mines' River Coal To Aid the Defense Program

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Spurred by fuel demands of the national defense program, a fleet of more than 200 weather-stained dredges are defying winter this year to "mine" more than 325,000 tons of waste coal from the Susquehanna river in eastern Pennsylvania between nearby Middletown and Sunbury.

The coal, valued at more than $1,000,000, is washed downstream for 100 miles from the collieries in the hard coal fields and is sucked from the river by open-decked flatboats employing suction hoses. Engines operating stern paddle-wheels also spin centrifugal pumps which pull the coal from the river bottom.

About the size of No. 4 buckwheat, or too big to pass through the mesh of an ordinary window screen, the coal is washed on a series of screens to remove sand and debris. Values range between $2 and $4 a ton.

Three decades ago, the coal was mined from the river with a 10-foot shovel and a system of screens but now the pumps clean the river bottom much in the manner of a vacuum sweeper.

Dropping anchor in the area to be worked, the barge crew pay out about 600 feet of cable to enable the boat to drift downstream. Then, as the engine operates the pumps and winds the cable on a drum at the same time, workmen lower a 10-inch T-shaped hose to the river bed and suck up the coal to a waiting barge for cleaning.

Rivermen say half the trick is to know the "spots" where the coal ranges in depth from two inches to four feet.

A touch of irony, however, marks the unusual industry. Because use of the river coal would force installation of blowers on the steam boilers, the engines generate power by using soft coal.

Amateur Boxing Makes Comeback Effort Here Tonight

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Gyro club members went into spring training last night for the opening of the baseball season when, as is their custom, they will pry off the diamond lid with the White Sox-Indian inaugural at Cleveland stadium April 17.

Now the Gyros are veterans at the game and are not to be caught cavorting about like young colts and turning up with charley horses like old hags. I mean nags, on the first day of training.

They take it easy, knowing all the time they'll be on the team when the bell rings. Heck, they RUN the team. Just like you, and you.

So I sat in on their opening training grind last night at the Mansfield-Leland, observing with my trained and diamond-wise eye just how they went about it.

I noted particularly how they took a good, firm grip, (on themselves) adopted an easy, comfortable stance, leaned back on their heels, and elsewhere, and taunted: "Pitch the pictures to me, Mister."

And the training season was under way with the showing of the official American league baseball movies. This is a form of training which I heartily endorse. It may call for a bit of body English, particularly while watching guys slide into bases and things, but it shouldn't develop any pulled tendons or stuff.

The pictures were starting on a round of Mansfield clubs, making a quick hop last night from the Gyro to the Lions club. The pictures are well worth seeing if the opportunity comes your way, but I must admit they would have done me more good 20 some odd years ago than they do today.

Now they succeed only in giving me a nostalgic craving for summer sun, and hot dogs and peanuts, and lukewarm pop, and the roar of the crowd.

It's too late for me to learn how how Bob Feller fires his last one, and Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio straighten 'em out into faster ones, and how Joe Kuhel plays first base, and Mickey Owens drops the last strike in a world series ball game, and that it takes only five seconds to complete a double play.

Funniest thing I've read in a long time is Izzy Kaplan's letter this week's Sporting News describing his adventures as a New York Mirror photographer in the training camps of the New York Yankees. Here's just a sample:

Rounding Hop de Snipes.

Dot year, de gang is taking me to snipe hunting every night. A snipe isn't a leedle cigaret butt like I was thinking onteel they showed me de deefrence. Eet's a leedle boidie wheetz it comes out only at night in de meedle of de woods. All de time, de gang is letting me hold de bag wheetz the beegest honor in snipe hunting.

Toist dey are taking me out to de meedle of de woods. Naxt, dey give me de bag and tal me I should be holding it open along de path where de snipe comes so den they are chasing de boid, it will run right into de bag. After dis, de gang disappears into de woods to round hop de snipes. Every night, I wait for maybe two, three hours but no snipe is showing up. When I'm gatting mad, all by minesalf, de hull gang is waiting in de lobby.

"Snipe was scarce tonight, Izzy," "we'll get 'em tomorrow," dey tell me.

"You saddit, my frands!" I reply, wigorously.

So de naxt night, we'd go snipe hunting again, but it would be de same old story. Would you believing it. I deen't could catch a single snipe all dot sisson? Vot's de rizzon, I wonder? Maybe de snipe don't like me.

WANTS WINNER

ORLANDO, Fla. —(AP)— Clark Griffith of the Washington Nationals is in the market for a young outfielder and a third baseman. His theory is that a winning team will mean big gates this season in boom-town Washington, especially with 21 night games scheduled at Griffith stadium. Since buying Buck Newsom, Griffith is satisfied with the pitching staff and he thinks the club may finish in the first division with more power at the plate.

No Change Makes ABC Alley News

First Time In 20 Days Leaders Undisturbed.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—For the first time in 20 days there were no changes among the leaders in the American Bowling Congress tournament overnight, and there aren't likely to be many today for booster squads are scheduled tonight as the event takes a two-day relapse, awaiting the advent of some super-stars over the weekend.

The super-stars will include Ned Day, national match game champion and also holder of the best 10-year record in ABC's with a 204 mark; Hank Marino, "the old master" who has won medals here, there, and everywhere in this and that tournament; and Charley Daw, another old-timer and one of the very few to ever repeat as a champion in the ABC. Charley won the doubles twice, once in 1923 and again in 1932.

Friday night 10 boys from the Ohio School for Blind are scheduled to bowl. The blind students will have special guide rails to help their kegling, part of the curriculum at the school for the last seven years.

* * *

Members of the No. 1 team will be Eugene Brown, captain, of Springfield; Perry Smith, a southpaw from New Lexington; Joe Ulichney, of Youngstown, Joe Winters, East Liverpool and Vernon Pillivant, Grafton.

On the No. 2 team, captained by Kenneth Sesler of London, will be his brother, Kermit; Ray Fannion of Hamilton; Andy Martin, Columbus and Carl Curl, Lima.

The boys aren't expected to do much, for a score of 150 is something sensational, but they will be giving a demonstration of the school's athletic program.

* * *

Yesterday's high scores were far short of the leaders in each event, tops for teams being Standard Savings & Loan of Columbus with 2857 among teams; top singles for the day was 673 by Jack Earl of Canton; best doubles were twin 1224's by John Jones and Bryant Ewing of Newark, and by Leonard Phister-Andrew Lackney of Canton, Ohio.

Soldiers Pull For Williams

Red Sox Slugger Hopes Fans Feel Same Way.

By FREDERICK WILLIAMS

ATLANTA, Ga—(U.P.)—Ted Williams, the .400 hitter who chose to shoulder a ball bat instead of a gun this summer, is the most popular man on the Boston Red Sox team with soldiers in the service and he hopes that the fans will look at things the same way, he said today.

* * *

The Red Sox manager, Joe Cronin, said that wherever the team went, khaki clad soldier fans hunted up the lanky Williams and told him they were with him and were pulling for him to have another great season.

* * *

"It makes a man feel mighty good to have the fans pulling for him," Williams said as the Red Sox stopped over here. "Especially am I glad about the men in the service."

The Red Sox beat the Atlanta Crackers, Southern association champions, 16 to 4, with Williams getting all applause and no boos each time he came to bat.

Cronin said that the manner in which the fans were supporting Williams was one of the biggest factors in the team's rapid improvement in spring training games.

"Things look mighty good right now," he said. "We're getting into shape, early injuries are healing and Ted has shown that his reporting late hasn't hurt that .400 hitting any."

* * *

"We're going to play real baseball this year and do everything that we can to aid public morale. I believe baseball will continue all season, but if the government decides it isn't best, that's all right."

COCHRANE GETS BIG TIME STARS

GREAT LAKES, Ill — (INS) — Lieut. Mickey Cochrane, who expects to give the major league teams some trouble this summer with the club he is assembling at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, had a fourth big league player on his roster today in the person of Don Padgett, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Other major leaguers already at the station are Benny McCoy, formerly of the Athletics, and Johnny Lucadello and Joe Grace of the St. Louis Browns.

Nice Legs the Horse Has

A racehorse's fortune is in his legs. The same goes for a dancer. So when Charlotte Lavelle, dancer, visited a racehorse, Who Reigh, stabled at Tropical park, Coral Gables, Fla., the cameraman featured the legs of both. Charlotte likes horses and likes to see 'em run.

Regulations Drawn for Use Of Motors at Charles Mill

Rules and regulations for use of motor driven boats on the south end of Charles Mill reservoir have been received here, limiting motors to six horse-power, and listing license fees.

While the rules, issued by the board of directors of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district apply to all the waters in the district, sportsmen in this vicinity will be most interested in Rule No. 5, which says:

"No motor driven boats of any kind shall be placed, maintained or operated on the waters of the Charles Mill Reservoir, except that boats with motors not in excess of 6 H. P. may be operated, SOLELY FOR THE PURPOSE OF TRANSPORTING FISHERMEN TO AND FROM FISHING SPOTS, on that part of said reservoir south of highway known as U. S. Route 30 and within lanes and at speeds as are from time to time ordered by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources."

* * *

This means motors can not be used just for the boat ride, and fishermen will not be bothered by motorboats continually swishing past their boats and lines.

Rule No. 6 says:

"No motor driven boats having power equipment in excess of 6 H. P. and no combination of boat and motor capable of a speed in excess of 8 miles per hour shall be operated on the waters of Atwood, Leesville, Piedmont, Senecaville, Wills Creek and Pleasant Hill Reservoirs, except that boats with motors in excess of 6 H. P. may be operated on that part of the Pleasant Hill Reservoir located in Ashland county."

And Rule No. 7: "No motor driven boats shall be operated within 150 feet of the shore line of any reservoir, except in lanes established by the District to authorized landing sites and docks. No boats shall operate in such lanes at speeds in excess of 4 miles per hour."

Rule No. 8: "No motor driven boat shall be operated on the reservoirs without being equipped with an approved muffler, and shall not participate in any speed race or competitive contest, either planned or casual, except in that part of Pleasant Hill where motors in excess of 6 H. P. are permitted and then only on Regatta days that have been authorized by the district."

Complete rules for motor boat use, and camping regulations, may be seen at Yuncker Brothers sport goods store, or at the Charles Mill boathouse.

* * *

Permits for use of motors may be purchased at the boathouse. Later stickers will be provided showing permit fees have been paid. Until these are received, sportsmen will be given receipts which may later be turned in for the stickers.

Belting Ben Likes Pressure

And It's on Again as He Defends Title.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—Ben Hogan, who is just as serious as he looks out there on the golf course, was under pressure again today as he began defense of his title in the 72-hole Land of the Sky open.

Hogan, for all his icy nerve, feels under pressure as much as any man playing golf; and he's been under it so much that he feels the difference when it is off. Leading the North-South last week by a wide margin, Hogan took sixes on number ten both rounds of the final day. He was so far ahead that he couldn't concentrate. "I had to shake myself on the 11th tee, to get rid of the let-down," he said. The result in the afternoon was a birdie three on the next hole.

Today the pressure was on again, because Belting Ben was the favorite and defending-champion.

But it was not all concentrated upon him. Byron Nelson got a share, not only because he was favored back of Hogan but also because he was seeking to finish in the money for the 34th straight tournament.

Chandler Harper, newly named along with Chick Harbert to play in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., was set to keep intact his mark of finishing in the dough in every meet this year. Last Sunday, the Portsmouth, Va., pro barely squeezed into the money circle at Greensboro, N. C., tieing with two others for last place.

Some of the pressure was on the whole field, seeking to halt the little Texan who has swept the $5,000 event two years in a row, after finishing second to Dick Metz in the first tournament in 1939.

Last year Hogan needed 284 and beat out Lawson Little by a stroke. The year before he scored 273, three shots ahead of Ralph Guldahl in second place.

Frosh Grid Use Uncertain

Nine Colleges Vote Against War Change.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The question of whether to allow freshmen to participate on intercollegiate teams in the Ohio conference will be a tough one to decide when conference officials meet next month to settle the issue.

In a report to the Ohio Education association today, Dr. A. H. Upham, chairman of the committee on athletics and president of Miami university, disclosed that of 29 college members, nine voted against the proposal and 10 said they would abide by the conferences' decision.

Three others replied that they might "possibly" favor the new rule while three said they "hoped the rule would not be passed." Two already use freshmen, one college has no intercollegiate teams and the 29th is undecided on the problem.

Dr. Upham also predicted increased emphasis on physical education in Ohio's colleges next year as a result of the war, but said the gain would not be made at the expense of intercollegiate athletics.

In answer to a questionnaire sent all Ohio colleges, 16 reported an increased physical education program and 11 declared there would be no particular change in their athletic setup.

"Numerous colleges that have physical education for freshmen and sophomores are planning to expand the program to include one or two more years," Dr. Upham revealed, "and to extend intramural sports to include more students in athletic competition."

"The consensus shows Ohio colleges are falling in line with the nation's campaign to keep young men at the peak of physical condition in case they are needed either by the armed forces or by industry."

Veterans Put on Benefit Glove Card

Newly Crowned Columbus Tourney Champs Meet Mansfield Boxers

AFTER an absence of nearly a year, amateur boxing makes its bid for a comeback tonight at the armory when the 40 & 8 of the American Legion stages a Mansfield-Columbus card for the benefit of the veterans' child welfare fund.

And the Mansfield boys had better be good. The Columbus leather tossers are fresh from the American Legion Central Ohio tournament in the Capital city, where several of them won championships Monday night, and others went far in the tourney lists.

Herb Chambers of Friendly House tangles with Eddie Williams in the five-round main bout at 168 pounds, and Dick McConnell, Friendly House, meets Charles Gwynne in the five-heat semi-windup.

Gwynne won the 135-pound title at Columbus by edging his Wilberforce college teammate, Charles Justice, in a clever and fast boxing bee through a seven-count knockdown just before the final bell. Up to that time the fight had been even, and the decision went on the one hard right that floored Justice.

Harry Crawford, who won the 146-pound crown at Columbus, meets Mansfielder Mike Sauer in the top three-round bout tonight. Crawford defeated Howard Hodges of Marion by a flash of fists in the final stanza.

And Bob Lee, who copped the 160-pound title in spite of an injured right thumb, takes on Herb Schacherer in another three-heater. In spite of the bum thumb, Lee forced the fighting all the way and was well out in front on points.

FIGHT CARD
5 Rounds.
Herb Chambers, 168, Friendly House, vs. Eddie Williams, 168, Columbus.

Dick McConnell, 142, Friendly House, vs. Charles Gwynn, 140, Columbus.

3 Rounds.
Mike Sauer, 146, Friendly House, vs. Harry Crawford, 146, Columbus.

Bob Snyder, 147, Loudonville, vs. William Mager, 146, Columbus.

Herb Schacherer, 160, Friendly House, vs. Bob Lee, 160, Columbus.

Bob Mizer, 126, Loudonville, vs. Charles Frizzell, 126, Columbus.

Von Johnson, 152, Friendly House, vs. Bob Taylor, 154, Columbus.

Harvey Berry, 128, Friendly House, vs. Bob Messmer, 128, Columbus.

Jimmy Miller, 115, Mansfield, vs. Todd Doughty, 115, Columbus.

Williams, the main-go boy tonight, made a good showing while losing in the final bout of the Columbus tourney to Charles Hodges, 175-pound left-hook artist.

All service men in uniform will be admitted free to tonight's fights. Tickets have been placed on sale at the American Legion, Friendly House, Fox jewelry store, East Side Nite club, City News, Hunt's News, and Maxwell's Cafe, and with Bob Hayes at Westinghouse.

Tigers Call In Grid Tickets

Massillon High Refunds Money For 1942 Ducats

MASSILLON —(U.P.)— The prospects for a Massillon high school football season next fall were clouded in uncertainty today.

High school athletic authorities ordered refunding of money for approximately 1,000 tickets already reserved for 1942 games at the same time that Elwood W. Kammer, the new Tiger coach, called the gridders for their first spring drill next Monday.

The ticket money is being refunded, according to S. Earl Ackley, faculty athletic manager, because of the uncertainty whether the school will open at all next fall. School district voters recently rejected a proposed two-mill levy to provide funds for the financially-pressed school system.

The school board is expected to hold another election on the proposal before next fall, either before the present school year expires in June or by August.

BLAMEY CALLED GOOD MAN TO AID M'ARTHUR

Australian General Learned How to Direct Battles In Thick of War.

(By Wide World)

NEW YORK—It was just about inevitable that "Old Tom" Blamey should team up with General MacArthur to lay the groundwork for the United Nations' offensive in the Southwest Pacific.

He's fought a lot of battles in many lands, this chunky, bullet-headed Anzac who has been placed in command of the Australian and American ground forces under MacArthur.

He's smelled the smoke of battle from front-line trenches; he helped plan and direct the big Allied offensive that broke the Hindenburg line in 1918; he tried to stem the Nazi tide in Greece and Crete with pitifully outnumbered troops.

Now this 58-year-old soldier, Lieutenant General Sir Thomas Blamey, is in the biggest campaign of his long military career —against an enemy threatening invasion of his homeland.

It's a tough job they've given this one time schoolteacher, but then Australians will tell you that Tom Blamey is a tough gent. A man who doesn't direct a battle from the textbooks but from experience gained on the firing line.

The bitterest job he ever had was to send his Aussies into Greece, sons of the men he had campaigned with a quarter of a century before in the first World war.

But he told them: "Anzacs, set your teeth and be worthy of your fathers."

Blamey was with Australian troops in the first World war when they faced the Turks on the shell-pocked Gallipoli peninsula from which an Allied army was withdrawn after eight months of fighting.

He helped direct that gigantic withdrawal, carried out without the loss of a single man.

His intelligence work was not done in the safety of a tent behind the lines but often in dangerous night patrols.

One night he set out on a patrol with two companions to locate a bothersome Turkish gun emplacement. They slipped into the hills and suddenly heard someone cough. Blamey and his companions dropped to the ground and scarcely breathed while a Turkish patrol passed them in the night. They could have reached out and touched the enemy.

Silently, the Allied patrol slipped forward again, only to run into another group of Turks advancing with fixed bayonets.

A Turk raised his rifle to bayonet one of Blamey's men, and "old Tom" shot him down. The Turks crowded together in surprise, and were mowed down by gunfire.

Promotion followed quickly for Blamey. Superiors admired his energy, coolness and technical skill. Later he became the right hand man of General Sir John Monash with a rank of Brigadier General.

The verdict of those who know him is that "Old Tom" and the Fox of Batan, General MacArthur, will make a great team.

Reform Inmates Are Schooled In Air Mechanics

CHILLICOTHE —(INS)— Selected inmates of the federal reformatory at Chillicothe are being trained as airplane mechanics for behind-the-lines duty in World war II.

First offenders, 18 to 25 years old, are being schooled in an airplane mechanics class that is the first of its kind in any federal institution, Warden F. Lovell Bixby said. Deserving inmates of other institutions sometimes are transferred to the Chillicothe institution, erected on the site of old Camp Sherman where 100,000 doughboys trained for the first World war.

The school now has an enrollment of 25 and a faculty of three. It offers 1,727 hours of training in mathematics, drafting, blueprint reading, aerodynamics, civilian air regulations, woodwork, sheet metal, welding and machine shop practice.

The school already has "graduated" two classes, and has "alumni" at work in several of the firms building fighting ships for Uncle Sam. Those graduates whose terms have not expired remain to help out as instructors.

ATLANTA FINDS SLUM RIDDANCE GOOD BUSINESS

State Has Built Seven Units at a Total Cost of $17,500,000.

(By United Press)

ATLANTA, Ga.—America's first low-rent housing project, Techwood Homes, has become a must on the itinerary of sightseers in Atlanta—as much so as Stone mountain or "Gone With the Wind" landmarks.

This 604-family unit pioneered the slum-clearance and low-rent housing program which is providing new homes for more than 750,000 Americans.

Today Techwood is only one of seven such low-rent housing projects in Atlanta, built at a cost of $17,500,000. Fully occupied, the 5,000 modern publicly-owned homes house almost seven per cent of the local population.

Techwood families are proud of their homes, considering themselves the "blue bloods" of the nationwide low-rent housing program. Each year the settlement has a holiday, "Techwood day," in which the occupants stage a street dance and carnival.

Of their own volition, Techwood families have improved their social and economic status in their new homes. A Tenant Association represents them in self-government. A cooperative buying club saved them $100 in a three-months trial period of group purchasing of farm products.

Tenants have raised money for supplies and equipment to augment the recreation program for young and old. These occupants, from families which formerly numbered only 33 per cent of the city's population, yet had 56 per cent of the deaths, 69 per cent of tuberculosis, 59 per cent of arrests and 72 per cent of juvenile delinquents, today have one of the most complete recreation programs in the city.

Libraries, community buildings, movies and swimming pools are now the meeting grounds for these families. Youngsters no longer have to use vacant lots or traffic-cluttered streets for their games. As a result, the death rate, number of arrests and juvenile cases have taken a sudden drop.

Tenants pay on a graded rent system, ranging from $8.60 to $25 per month. This includes units from two to six rooms. The families do a good share of the maintenance work required for the units and grounds.

City officials are sold on the projects. In pre-Housing Authority days, the city received approximately $38,000 per year in taxes from these sites. Yet more than $1,175,000 was spent every year to protect life, health and property in these slum areas. All agree the projects are a good investment.

SEEMS STRANGE

ST. ALBANS, Vt.—(U.P.)—General claims agent A. P. Warren says it seems that only prize cows have been killed by Central Vermont railroad trains during the past two years.

Of the 24 cows killed on the railroad's right-of-way, Warren says there hasn't been an inferior critter.

"Every time a cow gets in the way of one of our locomotives," he says, "it turns out to be the 'best cow in the herd'."

LETTERS CONFIDENTIAL

JARROW, Eng.—(U.P.)—A husband has no right to open his wife's letters, according to the chairman of the Jarrow magistrate's bench. After the wife of Hugh Malloy had left him, a letter arrived for her containing £3. Malloy opened it and took the money. The court fined him 10 shillings.

Believe Isthmus Once Under Water Probed By Expedition

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — The theory that the Isthmus of Panama was once under water — several million years ago—and that North and South America were separated by seas will be investigated by a scientific expedition now on its way to Honduras.

The expedition, dispatched by the Field Museum of Natural History, is headed by Paul O. McGrew, assistant curator of paleontology, and Albert Potter, a Chadron, Neb., paleontologist. The party is proceeding by ship and plane to the town of Garcias in Honduras from which the explorers will use mules for transportation during their field work.

Before leaving, McGrew explained what the scientists expect to investigate.

"At present," he said, "the opinions of paleontologists are divided on the question regarding the emergence of the Isthmus of Panama.

"We know that North and South America were separated during most of the Tertiary period (which began about 55,000,000 years ago). There is some indication that the two continents were reconnected, via Central America, near the beginning of the Pliocene time (approximately 7,000,000 years ago), but also there is evidence that the land bridge was not present until the end of the Pliocene time, some five or six million years later."

The expedition expects to study the fossils of ancient mammals that once roamed what is now the interior jungles of Central America and what may have been a seashore millions of years ago.

"A solution of this problem would help solve other related problems concerning the migration of mammals in the geologic past," McGrew added. "It is believed that a study of mammals of Pliocene age from Honduras, rather near the ancient marine portal, would help materially in answering this question."

I—VITAL STATISTICS

1—Death Notices

McKINLEY

Mrs Marie, 77 Dawson Ave., widow of Glenn, died yesterday in a Columbus hospital after a lingering illness. The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral home where friends may call. Private services will be held Friday afternoon at 3.00 o'clock. Burial will be made in Mansfield cemetery. (Wappner Funeral Directors.) (L-k)

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all the relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and death of our husband and father, Nick Huck, to those who sent flowers, cards and furnished cars; to Msgr. Goebel for his kind and consoling words, and to the Geiger Funeral Home for the kindly service.
Mrs. Nick Huck and Children (C-k)

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 42251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

WE TAKE this means to thank all the friends and neighbors for their kindness shown during the death of our dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Baker. To Rev. Swoyer for his kind words, to all those who sent flowers, and to Wappner's funeral home for their kind assistance, and any others who were kind to us.
The Baker Children. (C-K)

FEW FAVORED STOCKS MAKE MODEST CLIMB

Many Leaders Continue to Lack Recovery Power, Bulls Wait Chance.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — An assortment of stock market favorites managed to acquire modest advances in today's proceedings but many leaders continued to exhibit a lack of recovery power.

Early bidding aided Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, North American, Sperry, International Nickel, J. C. Penney, American Can, Swift, Union Carbide and Allied Chamical.

Faltering at times were N. Y. Central, American Telephone, Anaconda and Phelps Dodge.

The evaporation of selling pressure on the stock department in the past week or so again led some observers to conclude the list might be getting ready for a come-back when and if bullish new appeared. The war picture still was too indefinite to provide much speculative or investment incentive.

Scant market comfort was derived from the department of commerce summary indicating quantity sales of merchandise by retail stores in February were 10 per cent less than in the similar month a year ago. It was the first such recession for any month in the last three years. Due to price boosts, however, dollar volume sales in February exceeded the same 1941 month by 21 per cent.

Analysts also noted the survey of Dun & Bradstreet disclosing a sharp drop in the country's bank clearings for the past week. For 23 cities the decrease from a year ago amounted to 5.1 per cent. In previous weeks of 1942 the aggregate had matched or bettered 1941 figures.

All financial and commodity markets will be closed throughout the Christian world tomorrow, Good Friday.

tacked objectives in Belgium and northern France.

In a dramatic side phase of the European conflict, at least two of 11 British-chartered Norwegian merchant ships which boldly attempted to run the German blockade from Sweden to England were given a fighting chance of breaking through.

Stockholm dispatches said Nazi warships guarding the Skagerrak between Norway and Denmark had crippled or sunk two and possibly four of the daring craft after they slipped out of Goteburg, Sweden, during a blinding snowstorm Tuesday night.

Coastal fishermen said one ship went aground: one burned and perhaps sank; two, cut off from hope of escape, turned back; and at least two more were said to be returning to the haven of neutral Swedish ports after being caught in the storm of Nazi gunfire.

But fishermen said they saw at least two large ships undamaged and racing for the open sea on the final 300-mile dash to England.

The 11 ships, valued at $25,000,000, had been freed from internment by order of the Swedish supreme court on March 17.

On the Russian battlefront, Hitler's field headquarters reported that German troops had taken the offensive in the Leningrad sector and that German artillery heavily bombarded military installation in the suburbs of Leningrad.

Elsewhere on the long front, the high command acknowledged continuing Soviet pressure.

The Leningrad front drew major attention from the Soviet information bureau in its midnight communique. Red army troops were said to have effected a number of successful operations there in the last two days and annihilated about 3,000 Germans.
